A REAL ROMANCE

Ends in Domestic Love and Happiness.

R. AND MRS. ENTWISTLE NOW RESIDE IN LOWELL.

A Case in Which Love Defied Prison Bars.

"After a most troubled and almost tragic career, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Entwistle have settled down in this city and are enjoying all the happiness of married life.

It will be remembered that Harry Entwistle and Maria Clegg were married last April upon the former being pardoned from prison and they went to Europe on their wedding tour.

Now they have returned and are living on Corbett street, the husband working in the spinning room of the Massachusetts mills.

Harry Entwistle and Maria Clegg were lovers for some time previous to the summer of 1891 when a quarrel caused Miss Clegg to refuse to see her lover. Then the latter became dejected and resolved to do something desperate. He first determined to take his own life but in a moment of undoubted mental aberation he shot Miss Clegg.

The tragic proceeding took place on the evening of Oct. 7, 1891. The operatives were coming out of the mills and Miss Clegg was walking with a friend when her former lover came behind her and without a moment's warning fired four or five shots at her, one entering her lungs. She fell on the sidewalk and in the confusion Entwistle escaped.

He had an excellent opportunity to escape, but after he had walked as far as Wamesit he became filled with remorse and returned to the city, walking into the police station about midnight and giving himself up.

Miss Clegg, though at first considered in a critical condition, recovered, yet Entwistle was sentenced to 15 years' imprisonment.

Then the case gradually went out of the public mind, and nothing was thought of the unfortunate man until last April, when it was announced that Entwistle was soon to be pardoned at the intercession of Miss Clegg, that the pair were to be married and would reside with his folks in England.

Toward the end of the month they were married, and they remained in England until a short time ago.

Mrs. Entwistle, interviewed said: "My married life has been as happy as I could wish. My husband is as kind and as good as any woman could desire.

"Both of us liked England well enough, but preferred to live in the United States."

BOXING COSSIP.

"Jack" McDonough claims that he was ready to box "Mike" Moore in Lawrence Saturday night, but the latter failed to put in an appearance. McDonough weighed in at 149 1-2 pounds and claimed the forfeit money, which was given him.

The matching of Martin Flaherty and Spike Sullivan by the City Point Athletic club for its boxing entertainment at Music hall, Boston, March 5, has created as much interest, almost, as the much discussed contest between George Godfrey and Nick Burley, the Californian heavyweight, to which the Flaherty-Sullivan contest is a preliminary. Flaherty has long been recognized as one of the foremost men of his weight in the country, and his recent defeat over Danny McBride at the New York A. C., advanced him a notch nearer the goal of his ambition—the championship of the world.

IN CITY COUNCIL

Howe for Water Board and Cahill for Messenger.

THE WANNALANCIT LOT TO BE PURCHASED.

President Webster Pleads in Behalf of Assessors.

Last night's meeting of the aldermen was a special one, called especially for the purpose of drawing jurors.

The aldermen elected James Cahill city messenger, thereby non-concurring with the council, and reaffirmed its choice of Alderman Howe for the water board.

Michael J. O'Boyle and several others sent in notice of claims for damages for injuries received.

On motion of Alderman Crowley, all these notices were ordered on file in the city clerk's office. This is the way all similar claims will be treated in the future, and in case any person desires a hearing before the committee on claims, he will be obliged to send in a petition to that effect.

Rev. Fr. Guillard, O. M. I., petitioned for the acceptance of Lundberg street and the construction of a bridge across the Boston & Maine tracks on that street.

A communication was received from the school board asking for a four room addition to the Varnum school.

Another communication from the school board protesting against the location of the new Bartlett school on the city ledge lot was referred.

Several petitions for minor licenses were referred.

Artemas B. Woodward was nominated and confirmed as surveyor of lumber.

C. J. Cluney, P. A. Brousseau, W. H. Harrigan, and M. J. Maguire were nominated and confirmed as weighers of coal.

Fred Conant was nominated as a surveyor of lumber.

Thomas H. Kelley and Michael E. McDonald were nominated as constables, and James Ready as boiler inspector.

The following travers jurors were drawn to serve at the Lowell term of the Superior court, the second Monday in March: George Carson, Middlesex yard; John F. Monaghan, 18 Bleachery street; Andrew Rourk, 455 Market street; Eugene F. Morrill, 136 Fort Hill avenue; Thomas McKenna, 86 Belmont avenue; Philip H. Ilsley, 513 Westford street.

William J. Healand and David G. Connon were nominated as call men on the fire department.

A resolution to borrow $25,000 to be placed to the credit of a fund to be used for paving streets, took its final passage. Alderman Crowley voted against the resolution.

The resolution ordering that the streets of the city be sprinkled during the year, was introduced.

Alderman Wilson wanted the resolution amended so that the commons department will be exempt from paying any street watering tax.

Alderman Flemings opposed the amendment and said the commons department charges the street department for dumping snow on the commons.

Alderman Wilson said that the street department never paid a cent for dumping snow on the commons.

"Then," said Alderman Crowley, "the street committee should be indicted by the grand jury for creating a public nuisance by piling snow on the commons."

Alderman Wilson's amendment was lost. Alderman Crowley moved to lay the resolution on the table. The motion was lost. Alderman Wilson gave notice of reconsideration at the next meeting.

A resolution was passed authorizing the water board to hold land up near the Chelmsford line for the purpose of extending its water works plant.

Alderman Dow moved to ballot for a member of the water board on the part of the aldermen. The ballot resulted in five for Alderman Howe and two for Alderman Wilson and the former was declared elected on the part of the aldermen.

Then Alderman Dow moved to take a ballot for city messenger. The result was announced as follows: James H. Cahill 5, Frank C. Going 2, and Mr. Cahill was declared elected on the part of the aldermen.

An order was read asking that the lands and buildings committee and the mayor consider the expediency of reducing expenses at Huntington and Jackson halls. The order was laid on the table.

An amendment to the ordinance was introduced authorizing the mayor to nominate subject to confirmation by the aldermen, six assistant assessors in March or April, said assessors to hold office till next January when the mayor will nominate subject to confirmation by the aldermen six assistant assessors to hold office for two years.

An order was adopted directing the city solicitor to keep the city council posted on all matters coming before the legislature relating to the city of Lowell.

A recess of 15 minutes was taken.

At 9.30 the board reassembled and an order was read authorizing the city clerk to present free passes to all places of amusement in the city to the councilmen. The order was referred to the committee on licenses.

The board then adjourned.

COMMON COUNCIL.

The council last night devoted considerable time to a consideration of the sections in the salary resolution laid on the table at the last meeting.

Several of the councilmen took part in the discussion, Pres. Webster being particularly prominent.

Mr. Hartwell moved that the salary of the Police board be the same as last year.

Mr. Hounsell favored the motion, and said he thought the commissioners are underpaid.

The motion of Mr. Hartwell was passed, the council thereby non-concurring with the aldermen.

The salaries of members of the police force were accepted as sent down by the aldermen.

Mr. Rivet moved that the salaries of assessors remain the same as last year.

This brought Pres. Webster to the floor, and he read a lengthy paper advocating paying the assessors a good salary.

The motion of Mr. Rivet passed.

Mr. Penn introduced a motion that the city engineer devote all of his time to the city, except that he be allowed to give expert testimony.

Mr. Hounsell objected that a motion to the contrary had been passed.

The chair ruled that the question was on the acceptance of the whole report, and that any new business could be introduced under that head.

Mr. Penn's motion was defeated, and the resolution as amended was then passed.

The resolution authorizing the lands and buildings committee to purchase a site for a new Bartlett school on Wannalancit street, at a price not to exceed 25 cents per square foot, came up for a second reading.

Mr. Hallett objected to the price on the ground that the land was assessed for but 15 cents.

Mr. Miskella favored the city ledge lot and said:

"I desire to say a few words on this matter. I was a member of the committee on education last year and with the rest of the committee inspected the Bartlett school. I was impressed at that time with the fact that there should be another school built in place of the present Bartlett school. At that time I was in favor of selecting the so-called ledge site. My reason was that the city owned a tract of land which could be used with advantage for school purposes and the city and taxpayers would be saved a considerable sum of money. And further, I have come in contact with a number of people who claim that the interests of the school children in the Bartlett school district could be better served by building the school on the ledge site. Now, Mr. Chairman, we hear a great deal at the present time about reform and retrenching expenditures. The committee on education have it in their power to save a large sum of money and gain the gratitude of the taxpayers by voting to recommend the ledge site. I say have it in their power because this body, I think, will refer the report back to the committee."

Mr. Hounsell opposed the ledge lot and the resolution passed by a vote of 14 to 11.

An amendment to the ordinances was introduced by Mr. Rivet. It provided that there should be but six assistant assessors for the ensuing years, their election to be for two years. It was referred.

Mr. Penn introduced a joint order requesting the city solicitor to keep the city council posted on all new laws pending in the legislature affecting the city. Adopted.

Mr. Hallett introduced a joint order asking the mayor and committee on buildings to inquire into the expense of maintaining Huntington and Jackson halls, with a view to reducing the same.

Mr. Miskella and Mr. Reynolds objected to the order and thought it was a matter that should come to the attention of the lands and buildings committee.

The order was adopted.

The resolution transferring the care of the boulevard from the street to the commons department was defeated. Mr. Dickson gave notice of reconsideration at the next meeting.

A joint order introduced by Mr. Reynolds, asking the aldermen to make it a condition of theatrical licenses that councilmen be admitted free of charge was adopted.

The order for a special committee to confer in the matter of removing the restrictions from the land in the rear of the Market building was adopted in concurrence. Messrs. Hunton, Pihl and Miskella were appointed on the committee.

The joint order relating to the issuing of registered bonds was adopted in concurrence.

The marriage of Mr. Milo W. Hale, Jr., who has charge of the cloak department of Cook & Taylor's establishment and Miss Luetta S. Winchester, an estimable young resident of the Highlands occurred yesterday afternoon at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. John K. Winchester, 40 Marginal street. The ceremony occurred in the parlor which was beautifully decorated with ferns and potted plants and was witnessed by only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. E. Fisher of the First Universalist church and the bride was attended by her sister, Miss Maud Winchester, the best man being Mr. A. G. McCurdy. The bride was very becomingly attired in blue silk while her maid wore white. After the ceremony the happy young couple received the hearty congratulations of all assembled after which a collation was served. At 5 o'clock amid a shower of rice Mr. and Mrs. Hale departed on their wedding tour which will embrace a visit to New York and upon their return will reside at 40 Marginal street.

BOARD OF HEALTH

Will Cause All Teachers to Be Notified

TO FORBID PUPILS HAVING WHOOPING COUGH

To Attend---at THE SUN'S Suggestion Yesterday.

The board of health held a regular meeting yesterday afternoon and decided that the public safety demands that no pupil who is suffering from whooping cough should be allowed to attend school.

The board took this action because of the article published in yesterday's SUN calling attention to a case where a pupil suffering with whooping cough was permitted by his teacher to attend school.

All teachers in the city will be notified of the action of the board so that in the future scholars whom they suspect to be suffering from whooping cough may be prohibited from attending school.

It is very remarkable that neither the school board nor the board of health had any rule forbidding children having whooping cough attending school.

After being notified by the board of health there will be no misunderstanding on the matter and the pupils will be better protected.

CITY HALL COSSIP.

The regular monthly meeting of the overseers of the poor will be held at the city farm tomorrow afternoon. It is said that there will be opposition to the plan to extend the term of office of Superintendent Pindar.

The session of the evening schools will terminate Friday evening. The high school, however, will continue one week longer.

Mayor Courtney has been invited to attend a dinner to be given by Mayor Quincy of Boston at the Parker house, next Saturday, when the question of taxation will be discussed. The mayors of all Massachusetts cities have been invited to be present as well as the president of the local boards of trade.

The reference of the order providing for free passes to all theatrical performances for the common councilmen, to the license committee, means, according to one alderman, that the order will be pigeonholed for the remainder of the year.

The next move of the water board will probably be to pump all driven well water to the reservoir and from there distribute it through the city, instead of pumping from the plants direct to the mains, as is now done.

A member of the water board says that this department spends more money than it should, and expresses the opinion that the introduction of the meter system will reduce expenses and also water rates.

On two days, recently, 11,000,000 gals. of water were used on each day. It cost about $16 to pump 1,000,000 gallons, and the opinion is expressed that this quantity should be pumped for $6.

Do people buy Hood's Sarsaparilla in preference to any other,—in fact almost to the exclusion of all others?

Because

They know from actual use that Hood's is the best, i. e., it cures when others fail. Hood's Sarsaparilla is still made under the personal supervision of the educated pharmacists who originated it.

The question of best is just as positively decided in favor of Hood's as the question of comparative sales.

EXPENSIVE SLIP

By Which Cuban Filibusterers Were Taken.

THE SPANISH AUTHORITIES ARE WELL PLEASED.

But Cubans Are Not Yet Discouraged.

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—The iron steamer Bermuda, flying the British flag, which was seized off Liberty island by revenue officers because she had been bought by Cuban revolutionists and was fitted out as a filibuster, is tied up at the government pier at the battery.

Benjamin J. Guerra, treasurer of the revolutionary junta, was arrested yesterday afternoon by the United States marshal. It is charged that he gave a receipt for certain money to be used in the filibustering expedition.

At the examination before Commissioner Shields, United States District Attorney MacFarlane directed the calling of General Calixto Garcia, Captain Hughes, Benjamin Guerra, Captain Brabazou and John D. Hart. The first four, through their counsel, were granted a postponement until March 3. John D. Hart asked for a speedy hearing. His examination was set down for Friday next.

General Garcia and Captain Hughes were subsequently arraigned upon another count, the two charges including the Hawkins and the Bermuda filibustering.

The charges against the five accused were made in the name of the United States, but the additional charges against General Garcia and Captain Hughes were brought by the Spanish consul. All the prisoners furnished bail and were set at liberty.

A. G. Gonzalez, a lawyer, who is a supporter of the junta, said that the expedition had cost about $100,000. The Cubans, he declared, were by no means discouraged by the present disappointment in carrying out their plans.

Spanish Authorities Happy.

A report from Washington says that while Minister Dupuy de Lome declined to speak about the Bermuda's seizure, it was learned, however, that the Spanish authorities there attach more importance to Monday night's results than to anything yet accomplished.

For at least a month they have spared no efforts to circumvent the departure of filibusters or the shipment of arms to Cuba, and every man who escaped from the foundering of the Hawkins off Long Island have been unceasingly "spotted" by the Pinkertons.

General Calixto Garcia, who led the Hawkins expedition, has been most closely watched from day to day, and spies have accompanied him to Philadelphia and other places which he visited, it is claimed, to secure support for another expedition.

The Spanish legation, it is said, was fully informed that the men from the Hawkins were held in daily readiness to re-embark, and extraordinary precautions were taken to defeat them.

When the Bermuda was secured the efforts of the detectives were redoubled, and it is believed the Spanish authorities had no doubt that her departure would be prevented if the co-operation of the United States officials could be secured.

The Spaniards are particularly elated over the success of their agents, as it was understood by them that the Bermuda would enable the Cubans to fit out a formidable force in the eastern part of the island just when, it is claimed, General Weyler's active campaign is beginning to make the situation extremely critical.

Manchester's Police Hearing.

CONCORD, N. H., Feb. 26.—At yesterday afternoon's session of the governor and council, in the hearing in the Manchester police commission case, Governor Busiel announced that it was the opinion of himself and his associates that "the law of 1893 does not impose upon police commissioners the duty of enforcing the laws, but we will hear evidence tending to show misconduct on the part of the police officers, which the commissioners have connived at, or, which having been brought to their attention, they have willfully or wrongfully refused to consider." After a sharp wrangle by the attorneys the examination of witnesses began. The hearing is unfinished.

Sultan Must Try Again.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 26.—Lord Salisbury has sent a reply to the communication which the sultan instructed Costaki Pasha to make to the British government inviting England to regulate the situation in Egypt with suzerain power on the basis of guarantees being given for the security of communications between England and India. Lord Salisbury, in his reply, says that the Turkish ambassador's suggestions are too vague. The sultan has, therefore, to formulate concrete proposals on the subject.

He will in any event resign, whatever the result of the motion may be. It is said his resignation has already been forwarded to the New York Yacht club.

BOSTON, Feb. 26.—The New England Armenian relief committee have received the following cablegram from the treasurer of the Anglo-American relief committee in Constantinople: The British ambassador hears that there are great misery and sickness among refugees at Zeitoun, especially on account of the bitter cold. The sick by hundreds lie near corpses of dead women and girls, without a rag to cover them. Press upon all committees our need for funds.

THE FALL RIVER TROUBLE

OVER CERTAIN REMARKS OF A SCHOOL TEACHER.

Insulting to Catholic Pupils Regarding Their Religion—An Investigation Likely to Follow.

According to the Fall River Globe, Miss Grinnell, a teacher in one of the schools, committed a very grave offense in insulting her Catholic pupils by contemptuous reference to their religion. Here is the story as told by the Globe:

Three children stated to a Globe reporter that their teacher had said Tuesday afternoon in connection with Ash Wednesday: (Friday's Globe is quoted.) "She didn't want any of her pupils late the next day (Ash Wednesday), because they could go to church and get a "daub" and be back early, like the children did last year. Then Miss Grinnell is alleged to have said substantially: "If you go to church come right back to school, and those who don't get a daub can find plenty of ash barrels around my house."

Then the teacher is alleged to have gone to a speaking tube in the room and repeated the same insulting speech to another teacher in the building.

But this is not all. Miss Grinnell further is reported to have said that she didn't know whether the St. Patrick's day parade would go by the school or not, but if it did she would let the children go to the windows. "Anyway," she is alleged to have said, "I haven't got straightened out yet, I don't know just how many St. Patrick's I've got."

A third child repeated substantially what the second and first had said, though all were seen at different times, and each spoke without the knowledge of what any others had said.

Much feeling was wrought up by the story of the teacher's scoffing words. Catholic mothers and fathers were indignant and yesterday the matter was discussed in the convention of Irish and Catholic societies. The general sentiment of the city is that a teacher should not give herself the opportunity of venting bigotry or belittling remarks as to the faith of anyone, and that spleen or forgetfulness does not constitute a sufficient excuse for a slur on religion or any of its forms. A greater stir has been created by the words alleged to be used by the teacher than most people imagine.

She denies the phraseology quoted by the children, but admits warning them not to be late on account of attending church. The matter will probably be investigated by the school board.

JAMESON A HERO

London Gives Him a Warm Reception.

THE RAIDERS BROUGHT INTO COURT FOR EFFECT

Charged With Invading a Friendly State.

LONDON, Feb. 26.—It was probably not without design that the appearance of Dr. Jameson for arraignment in the Bow-street police court was delayed all through yesterday. There was a disposition to hilarity manifest in the locality from an early hour, and it was evident that there was set purpose pervading the London masses to give "Dr. Jim" an ovation.

The British authorities desire, as far as possible, to give no appearance of encouraging such a demonstration of approval to a citizen who had been handed over to them by a power against which he sought to wage war.

But the British government is well aware that, though Dr. Jameson is brought to England for trial as a criminal, he is in the popular eyes a hero, and his raid into the Transvaal, far from being viewed as a piratical enterprise, is looked upon as a chivalrous and knightly adventure to succor hard-pressed friends and fellow countrymen.

It was for this reason that the crowds about the Bow-street police court were kept waiting, and everything done to make a mystery of the movements of Dr. Jameson. It was hoped the ardor of his admirers would be cooled by the long wait, and that the noisy mob waiting to cheer him would grow weary and depart.

But all this strategy was without avail. The people insisted upon waiting. They grew impatient and somewhat irritable, to be sure, and many rumors circulated among them that they had been duped into coming to Bow street, while the distinguished prisoner had been quietly smuggled into another court and there arraigned and quietly bailed. It did not take long, however, to prove the falsity of these rumors, and the crowd renewed its vigil with renewakened zeal.

At 3:35 p. m. the faith of the crowd that they had not been waiting in vain was quickened by the arrival at Bow-street police court of a party of aristocratic friends of Dr. Jameson. Many of these were shown to prominent places in the courtroom, which was thus made to present an animated scene during the period of the still further wait.

As a matter of fact, it was quite late in the day before Dr. Jameson was landed at all. He was brought on a tug to Frith-on-the-Thames, and was then conducted by a further roundabout and obscure route to Bow-street police court. As a consequence, it was almost 6:30 o'clock in the evening when he was finally driven up to the entrance of the court and brought in. The authorities thus succeeded in evading any very noisy demonstration on the part of the waiting crowds outside, as they were scarcely aware that the prisoner was among them before he had disappeared into the courtroom.

Jameson's Popularity.

But his entrance to the courtroom was the signal for a remarkable scene. Evidently everyone in the courtroom was of one mind in sympathizing with him. All were his friends and all rose, giving him hearty cheers. It was in vain that the court officers sought to quell the demonstration. The effort to do so seemed little more than cursory.

The charge lodged against Dr. Jameson and 14 of his fellow-prisoners was then declared to be "warring against a friendly state."

After the charge had been read, Henry Matthews, Q. C., who was home secretary in the former Salisbury government, announced that in view of the importance of the case that the law officers of the crown would conduct the prosecution. Formal evidence was then presented as to the circumstances of the arrest.

The lawyers who were in court on behalf of the accused men asked that their personal recognizances be accepted for bail.

Sir John Bridge, the chief magistrate of the Bow-street police court, said that, before deciding on the bail, he felt that he ought to observe that, in his opinion, a graver offense could not be charged against men than that charged against the prisoners. It was a crime of the highest possible gravity, the magistrate continued, and it must be so treated by everyone, when they consider that the commission of such an offense might create a war between countries previously friendly. The circumstances of the present case, he added, were most peculiar. He felt satisfied that the prisoners would appear when wanted. He, therefore, accepted their personal recognizances and fixed their bail at £2000 bonds each.

Sir John Bridge then addressed the prisoners personally in a grave and serious vein. He begged them for their own sakes and for the sake of the good faith of the country to refrain from appearing where public excitement would be aroused by their presence, or in any way lending themselves to the disturbance of the peace.

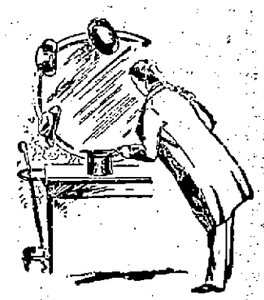

Notwithstanding the seriousness of Sir John's tones, and the tenor of his remarks deprecating any public demonstration over the prisoners, the withdrawal of the defendants from the courtroom was accompanied by a renewed outbreak of cheering. The court officers set about restoring quiet, and by vigorous remonstrances finally succeeded in quelling the disturbance.

When the courtroom had become quiet again, Sir John Bridge said: "That sort of thing might bring the name of England into contempt."

Meanwhile a still wilder scene was being enacted outside the courtroom. The prisoners had been smuggled into the courtroom so unexpectedly and with such dexterity that the waiting mob were cheated out of their opportunity for shouting. But they were ready this time. Dr. Jameson's appearance outside the building was the signal for a wild outbreak of cheering, throwing of hats in the air and a tremendous pressure to get up within reach of the popular idol.

The crowd's intentions were friendly, enthusiastically so, but they threatened bodily harm to the object of their admiration. Dr. Jameson was quickly hemmed in by a surging throng, who apparently sought to carry him, and he made his way through them with great difficulty. When he finally reached his cab he was hurriedly driven off without waiting to make any sign of acknowledgment of the popular ovation.

Our store will be closed Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday Evenings until March.

There's no peculiarity about our hat stock, except the peculiarities of fashion.

Such shapes and such colors as swell hatters show in Derbys and Tourist hats—these and no others find a place here.

We differ from the hatter in price alone—fifty cents to a dollar less than he charges for good hats.

A TWO YEARS' SENTENCE

Given James Kenney in the Superior Court at Cambridge Yesterday—His Companion Was Placed on Probation.

In the Superior court, yesterday, Judge Sheldon considered the case of James Kenney and Mary Collins charged with lewd and lascivious cohabitation. The man is middle aged, while the girl is not yet out of her teens.

Both came here from across the water last June. The girl had been a servant in Kenny's family and was seduced under a promise of marriage. Upon coming here they lived together and Kenny got a license to marry but never had any ceremony performed. In court he claimed that a clergyman refused to marry him without money. But the court understood the fact that such was not the case and sentenced Kenny to the house of correction for two years while the girl was placed on probation on recommendation of Deputy McQuade.

Police Court—Hadley, J.

Lawyer James E. Kerwin had his first case in court this morning, and handled it like an old timer. His client was charged with assault and was found guilty. He was fined $3 and placed under $100 bonds to keep the peace for six months. He paid and furnished bonds.

There were two drunks.

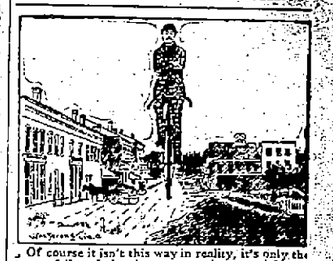

Asselin, the embezzler, was fined $25.

George Simpson appealed from a sentence of three months in jail for being a common drunkard.

Roentgen, like many another famous discoverer, has succeeded only in making a practical application of the discovery of another. Lenard elucidated cathode ray and Nikola Tesla provided the apparatus for their application in photography. TEACHERS' COMPLAINT.

The teachers of the public schools complain of being trotted out too often to meetings some of which they say are of no importance. The aim of Supt. Whitcomb undoubtedly is, to keep them in touch with the progress of the times. They say, however, that after attending so many meetings they are too tired to do successful work in their class rooms. The new ideas they may procure will not compensate for their physical exhaustion. If their statements can be relied upon, the excessive number of meetings are a detriment rather than a help to the schools.

NO LOAN NEEDED.

The municipal reformers are still, it seems, looking for arguments in favor of their petition for authority to borrow $200,000 outside the debt limit. There are sufficient funds at command to erect all the schools needed without appealing to the legislature and without borrowing any money.

The $86,000 obtained for the old city hall, the $250,000 to be turned over by the sinking fund commissioners and the money that can be secured by the sale of the old Bartlett school property would more than suffice to build all the additional schools needed for two years to come.

HINTS TO TRAVELERS.

How the Meek Wanderer Should Conduct Himself When on the Rail.

The following hints and observations have occurred to me during a recent trip across the continent. They are written in no spirit of complaint against existing railroad methods, but merely in the hope that they may prove useful to those who travel, like myself, in a spirit of meek, observant ignorance:

1. Sleeping in a Pullman car presents some difficulties to the novice. Care should be taken to allay all sense of danger. The frequent whistling of the engine during the night is apt to be a source of alarm. Find out, therefore, before traveling the meaning of the various whistles. One means "station," two "railroad crossing," and so on. Five whistles, short and rapid, mean sudden danger. When you hear whistles in the night, sit up smartly in your bunk and count them. Should they reach five draw on your trousers over your pyjamas and leave the train instantly. As a further precaution against accident sleep with the feet toward the engine if you prefer to have the feet crushed, or with the head toward the engine if you think it best to have the head crushed. In making this decision try to be as unselfish as possible. It inefficient, sleep crosswise, with the head hanging over into the aisle.

2. I have devoted some thought to the proper method of changing trains. The system which I have observed to be most popular with travelers of my own class is something as follows: Suppose that you have been told on leaving New York that you are to change at Kansas City. The evening before approaching Kansas City stop the conductor in the aisle of the car—you can do this best by putting out your foot and tripping him—and say politely, "Do I change at Kansas City?"

He says, "Yes."

Very good. Don't believe him. On going into the dining car for supper take a negro aside and put it to him as a personal matter between a white man and a black whether he thinks you ought to change at Kansas City. Don't be satisfied with this. In the course of the evening pass through the entire train from time to time and say to people casually, "Oh, can you tell me if I change at Kansas City?" Ask the conductor about it a few more times in the evening. A repetition of the question will insure pleasant personal relations with him. Before falling asleep watch for his passage and ask him through the curtains of your berth, "Oh, by the way, did you say I changed at Kansas City?" If he refuses to stop, hook him by the neck with your walking stick and draw him gently to your bedside. In the morning when the train stops and a man calls, "Kansas City—all change!" approach the conductor again and say, "Is this Kansas City?" Don't be discouraged at his answer. Pick yourself up and go to the other end of the car and say to the brakeman, "Do you know, sir, if this is Kansas City?" Don't be too easily convinced. Remember that both brakeman and conductor may be in collusion to deceive you. Look round therefore for the name of the station on the signboard. Having found it, alight and ask the first man you see if this is Kansas City. He will answer: "Why, where in blank are your blank eyes? Can't you see it there, plain as blank?" When you hear language of this sort, ask no more. You are now in Missouri, and this is Kansas City.

3. I have observed that it is now the practice of the conductors to stick bits of paper in the hats of the passengers. They do this, I believe, to mark which ones they like best. The device is pretty and adds much to the scenic appearance of the car. But I notice, with pain, that the system is fraught with much trouble for the conductors. The task of crushing two or three passengers together in order to reach over them and stick a ticket into the chinks of a silk skullcap, is embarrassing for a conductor of refined feelings. It would be simpler if the conductor should carry a small hammer and a packet of shingle nails and nail the paid up passenger to the back of the seat, or, better still, let the conductor carry a small pot of paint and a brush and mark the passengers in such a way that he cannot easily mistake them. In the case of baldheaded passengers the bats might be politely removed and red crosses painted on the craniums. This will indicate that they are bald. Through passengers might be distinguished by a complete coat of paint. In the hands of a man of taste much might be effected by a little grouping of painted passengers and the leisure time of the conductor agreeably occupied.

4. I have observed, in traveling in the west, that the irregularity of railroad accidents is a fruitful cause of complaint. The frequent disappointment of the holders of accident policy tickets on western roads in leading to widespread protest. Certainly the conditions of travel in the west are altering rapidly, and accidents can no longer be relied upon. This is deeply to be regretted, in so much as, apart from accidents, the tickets may be said to be practically valueless. I was brought in contact with one very sad case of a man whose mother-in-law had safely arrived in Denver from the west almost on the same day that his five surviving sons arrived in safety from St. Louis. The case was a peculiarly distressing one, since for some time the unfortunate man had found his sole means of support in sending his boys up and down over this route.—Stephen Leacock in Truth.

CROWNING OF THE CZAR

SPLENDOR AT THE CORONATION OF RUSSIA'S RULER.

Each Nation Will Try to Excel the Others In Magnificence of Gifts—All Europe Is Stirred—All Similar Events in the World's History to Be Surpassed.

It will be with ceremonies more magnificent than have ever taken place that Nicholas II will be crowned emperor of all the Russias in the Kremlin of Moscow early in May. For months past the work of preparation has been going on under the charge of Nicholas' most experienced officers, with the collaboration of the entire Greek church and hundreds of artists and master artisans.

The ceremonial will be divided into two parts—the great religious ceremony, by which the czar is actually crowned, and then the train of fetes and balls, at which all diplomatic Europe will be present. Each of these will be more imposing than those which have preceded it. In addition to this, the city of Moscow itself will be well worth the attention of even the most jaded sightseers, for every building will be decorated, and the already highly picturesque city will look even more wonderful by day and by night when the young czar comes into it for the crown of his ancestors.

Perhaps the most interesting features of this coronation are the preparations being made outside of Russian territory. The kings of Europe are deep in thought to find articles worthy of being sent on as presents. France, for example, has given her ambassador, Count Montebello, unlimited credit. This diplomat engaged, fully six months ago, a stately edifice in the finest quarter of Moscow and has fitted it up superbly. During the coronation he will give there, in the name of the republic, a series of brilliant fetes.

Montebello is now flying across the continent to personally arrange for the brica-brac that is to be sent on to adorn his official home—hundreds of yards of Gobelin tapestry, canvases of priceless value, exquisite marbles, bronzes, furniture of the most elaborate description and curios that originally saw the light in many a corner of the world, for all France has been ransacked for these, that the republic's seat of government in the Russian empire may be the most magnificent of any land.

Germany likewise is putting her very best foot foremost, and Prince Radolin, the personal representative of the kaiser, has been supplied with unlimited funds to make a finer showing than France, if possible. Austria has set aside 30,000 florins, or about $13,000, to hire and furnish a suitable palace in Moscow.

Great Britain is making adequate preparations also, and the probability is that she will outstrip the continental nations in gorgeousness, though such provisions as have been made are locked in the breasts of the foreign office and the embassy. England will have to do this, for the reason that the czarina is the own granddaughter of her majesty Victoria.

Moscow does not need holiday garb to make it of interest to the eye, for the roofs of the houses are blue, red or green—always some glaring, brilliant color—and the cupolas of the numberless churches are azure in hue, picked out with gold and silver stars, or else they are one shining, iridescent mass of gold, as is the enormous sanctuary of St. Vladimir. Many of the fronts of the houses are in gay colors, too, and the shops are adorned with pictorial signboards, showing the character of the business done within, all fairly good art and lavish in the amount of paint and the high, rich tints that are put upon them.

Moscow in holiday garb will be another thing. From Riga to Vladivostok and from Archangel to Kars deputations of peasants and nobles will come, laden with costly gifts. The Russian visitors alone will have to be numbered by the thousands, and, in addition to these, there will be hundreds of titled personages and notabilities from all over Europe. A special museum is to be set apart for the coronation gifts that will be received.

It is interesting to know that the reason of the selection of Moscow for the coronation is because it is the holy city of the Russias and the abiding place of the Greek church. The primate of this stupendous religious organization will place the crown upon the young czar's head, himself the head of the holy Russian church as well as ruler of the Russias. This one ceremony in the great cathedral of Moscow will be marvelously imposing. Only nobility and the priesthood will be bidden to witness it, for these alone will be sufficient to fill the whole vast edifice.—New York Journal.

Cardinal Manning's Dump of Conscience.

Although ascetic in his personal habits, the late Cardinal Manning was far from being austere, and among his intimate friends he relished telling or hearing amusing things. A story he never shrank from telling was of a sculptor who had once attempted his bust in Rome. During one of the sittings, as he was discoursing on phrenology, Manning made him point out on the head he was modeling the supposed seat of various organs and qualities. At last Manning had asked him where was the seat of conscience, upon which the sculptor had stalked across the room, and touching a certain part of the sitter's cranium remarked, "That's where it ought to be."—Household Words.

The Art of Prophecy.

"I think it will rain," the prophet says; "I think it will rain, you know;
I think it will rain today, good folk, provided it doesn't snow."
And then he climbs to his den aloft to note how the breezes blow.

"I think it will snow," the prophet says, "and so for a storm prepare,
I think it will snow tonight, good folk, provided it isn't fair."
And then he climbs to his den aloft to look at the rain gauge there.

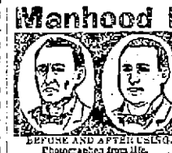

"The weather'll be fair," the prophet says; "the weather'll be fair and warm;
The weather'll be fair today, good folk, provided it doesn't storm."
And then he climbs to his den aloft to see how the cloud banks form.

"I think it will storm," the prophet says; "I think it will storm tonight;
The wind will blow a terrible gale, provided I've bit it right."
And then he climbs to his den aloft to see if the stars are bright.

"I think he is right," the critic says; "I've followed him all along;
I think he is right tonight, good folk, provided he isn't wrong."
And that is the view I take, good folk—the point of my little song.

ZIMMERMAN HOME AGAIN.

While In Australia He Had Only Indifferent Luck.

A. A. Zimmerman, the champion professional bicycle racer, who arrived from Australia recently, attributes his failure to come back with an unbeaten record to the Australian climate. The bicycle racers of that country, he says, do not compare with those of America or England in speed, but no matter how fast a foreign rider may be he cannot expect to win races until he has lived long enough in the country to become acclimated.

Parsons, Pitcher and Walker are the best riders in Australia, but they would stand little chance in this country against our fast men. Another thing that hindered Zimmerman in Australia was the poor tracks. They are generally four laps to the mile and are grassed. Zimmerman won 19 races in Australia and was beaten several times, twice at New Castle just before he left. He was well satisfied with the financial result of his trip, as the prizes for races are usually $1,000. Great interest is taken in bicycle racing, and race meets are attended by from 50,000 to 80,000 people.

Zimmerman was rather reticent about his plans in the United States. He said he had not yet decided whether he will race again. If he does race, it will probably be in Paris, where he has a standing offer of $300 a week for one race a week. This, he thinks, would be more profitable than following the circuit in the United States.

ON AN UNKNOWN LAND.

What Was Found on an Island In the Gulf of California.

S. C. Millard, who acted as guide and interpreter for Professor McGee and his party in their exploration of Tiburon island, in the gulf of California, has returned from the expedition with an overflowing supply of interesting things to relate.

He says the island is about 18 by 30 miles in size and rises 4,000 feet above the encircling waves of the gulf of California.

The land is barren and rocky and is inhabited by about 300 Ceres Indians, who are unlike any other known race in appearance and language. They wear very few clothes and scamper, barefoot, up and down the cliffs like wild goats. They never plant crops, but subsist on game, which is found in abundance on the island, and the waters furnish them with any quantity of fish, clams and oysters.

The popular belief that the natives are cannibals has not been strengthened by the visit of the explorers. There have been wild tales of mines of fabulous wealth upon the island, treasures buried by the Incas, of ledges of silver and copper ores of wonderful width and thickness, but Mr. Millard is inclined to discredit these stories. In the half of the island which was visited he saw plenty of rugged mountain, plenty of fertile valleys, many springs of delicious water, but of mineral wealth he saw no trace.—Washington Star.

WHEN HE PUFFS

Joe Blackburn May See Silver Linings on the Clouds of Smoke.

L. C. McMurtry of Jessamine county, Ky., has sent to Hon. J. C. S. Blackburn a handsome Kentucky cob pipe that is of very ingenious design. The pipe is made of several pieces, nicely smoothed and finished and joined together in the shape of a letter S, standing for "silver." Around each joint is a silver coil, and the handle joint is tipped with gold leaf. Accompanying the gift was the following note:

To the Hon. Joe C. S. Blackburn:

This "free silver" cob pipe is respectfully presented, produced in a "free silver" county, on a "free silver" farm, cultivated by a "free silver" farmer, shelled by a "free silver" sheller, made and presented with the best wishes of a "free silver" advocate. Earnestly hoping that it will be smoked during the next six years by a "free silver" senator from the "free silver" state of Kentucky, with great admiration and highest regard for you personally, I am yours most respectfully,

L. C. McMURTRY,
A "Free Silver" Painter.

The Awful Truth His Weapon.

Dr. English of San Francisco, who is now stopping in Philadelphia, is a practical joker of rare ability. The doctor possesses the most essential qualification of a joker—that is, a perfect command of his facial expression. A few days ago, while a rainstorm was at its height, a pompous man of large girth rudely pushed the physician aside as he rushed for a Tenth street car. Just as the fat man puffed his way to the platform Dr. English yelled and wildly beckoned him back to the pavement. With much astonishment and labor the passenger waddled to the curbstone and asked what was wanted. Placing his hands on the fat man's shoulders, the doctor asked him earnestly if he knew the day of the week.

"Why, it's Tuesday," was the reply.

"Are you sure?" entreated the doctor.

"Yes, sure."

"Great heavens," yelled English as he hopped on a passing car, "then yesterday must have been Monday!"—Philadelphia Record.

Great Theatrical Trust.

A theatrical trust is in process of formation to control a chain of 21 theatres stretching from New York to San Francisco. The parties to the combination are Al Hayman, Charles Frohman, Nixon and Zimmerman of Philadelphia and Rich and Harris of Boston. The promoters refuse to give details of the combine further than to say that all bookings will be made from a central headquarters to be established in New York.

New National Holiday Proposed.

In the senate another proposition for a national holiday has been presented by Mr. Hoar in the form of a memorial. It is to be June 24 and is to commemorate the first sighting of the north Atlantic coast by John and Sebastian Cabot in 1497. It was referred to the judiciary committee, to which has already been referred Mr. Hill's bill for a "Jackson day" March 15.

An Industrious Hen.

John Holloway of Smith township found an egg laid by a Plymouth Rock hen which measured 8½ inches lengthwise and 7 inches in circumference. When broken, one yolk and one white were found. Inside the large egg was found another of ordinary size, perfect in its formation and in all respects sound.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Sixteen Freaks Her Pallbearers.

The funeral of Nettie Cole, the fat girl known as the Kentucky Beauty, took place in Chicago recently. The casket was 30 inches wide, 27 inches high and 5 feet 6 inches long, and as no hearse large enough for the casket could be found, a covered undertaker's wagon was used. About all the professional museum freaks in the city were present, 16 of them acting as pallbearers.

SEEKING A SAFE PLACE.

The Boarding House Pleased Him Except in One Respect.

The young man who had answered the advertisement surveyed the room critically.

"It is quite satisfactory," he said at last.

The boarding house keeper gave a sigh of relief.

"When shall we expect you?" she asked.

"Not so fast, please," returned the young man. "There are some other details to be settled that are even more important than the plan and location of the room."

"I think you will be satisfied with the table, sir," suggested the landlady.

"I don't doubt it at all," he answered.

"And the price is"—

"Quite satisfactory," he interrupted. "But I am a little particular in regard to the people whom I shall be obliged to meet. In fact, it is solely because of that that I am leaving my present quarters."

"Only those whose characters are above reproach are"—

"Of course, of course," he interrupted again. "May I ask if you have any ladies among your boarders?"

"Certainly. Several of the gentlemen are married, and their wives are naturally with them."

"Oh, that's all right! But how about unmarried ladies?"

"There are two."

"And widows?"

"One."

He picked up his hat and started for the door.

"But, sir, they are"— she began.

"Madam," he replied, "I have no doubt at all that they are very estimable ladies, and I should be very glad to make their acquaintance any time except during leap year. But I am taking no chances now."—Chicago Post.

DR. NANSEN'S SURPRISE PARTY.

Dr. Nansen's reported discovery of the north pole is to be classed with the things that are important if true, but there isn't much reason for believing it.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

It is possible, however, that he has been heard from, though it may be considered strange that he sent no direct message to a friend or to some Russian official to prevent all doubt and render speculation unnecessary.—New York Journal.

It is still time enough for England to claim the north pole. Nansen hasn't reported yet, and a regular Deuravenish-British geographer named Kolsio proposes to question the honesty of his report if he claims it.—Philadelphia Press.

It would have been a great day for science if the eminent Dr. Nansen could have propelled himself to the north pole by means of the Keely motor and brought back evidence of his discovery in the shape of a Roentgen photograph of it.—New York Advertiser.

It would be wise for those who declare that Dr. Nansen could not have found the north pole to wait a short time till they hear what Dr. Nansen himself has to say about it.—Baltimore American.

FORTY HOURS' DEVOTION

Opened With a Large Congregation This Morning.

At St. Patrick's church, this morning, a large congregation attended the opening of the forty hours' devotion. A solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Fr. Burke, assisted by Rev. Fr. Gleason, deacon, and Rev. Fr. Leonard, sub-deacon.

There was a procession of the most Blessed Sacrament in which the clergymen, sanctuary boys and pupils of St. Patrick's school took part. The altar was illuminated with scores of lighted candles. After the service the Blessed Sacrament was exposed for adoration of the people. Tomorrow morning mass will be celebrated at 8 o'clock.

Ran Against a Stonewall.

One of Lowell's rising young physicians and his lady friend took advantage of the pleasant weather Sunday by taking a sleigh ride out in the suburbs. They were scarcely outside the city limits when one of the reins broke and the horse started on a run. For awhile the occupants of the sleigh were very much frightened but the doctor, by his presence of mind, reined the animal squarely against a stonewall and thereby averted what might have been a serious accident. The rein was repaired and the doctor returned about midnight.

WHOOPING COUGH

Children Suffering From It Attend School.

SUPT. WHITCOMB SAYS THEY SHOULD BE DEBARRED.

The Board of Health Should Take Action.

There seems to be some misunderstanding even among the teachers of the public schools, upon the question of allowing children suffering from whooping cough to attend.

It has come to the attention of THE SUN, that in a certain school, which, for the present, we shall not mention, a number of children, ill with whooping cough attend with the full permission and authority of the teacher.

We understand, also, that some of the parents of these children, realizing the danger of spreading the disease, visited the school, and asked the teacher if the rules permitted the attendance of children who have whooping cough.

The teacher in reply, stated, that a new rule of the "Board," presumably the school board, allowed the children to attend, even while having whooping cough.

In accordance with this alleged rule, several children have attended that school while suffering from whooping cough, and as a result, the malady is spreading. From that school it may spread to others, and become epidemic.

This is a matter that claims the attention of the authorities.

A SUN reporter interviewed Superintendent Whitcomb on the matter, and was informed that the rules of the board do not allow children suffering from any contagious disease to attend school. As soon as it has been ascertained that a pupil has such a disease, whether it be whooping cough, scarlet fever, diphtheria, or anything else, the child, under the rules, should not be allowed to attend school. Some people think that because all children are likely to have whooping cough at sometime, it makes no difference if they do catch it from their school mates.

This is a mistake. As a rule, children have plenty of dangers to avoid, without being exposed unnecessarily to any that can be avoided by the application of common sense, or conformity to the plainest rules of health.

The teacher who neglects this rule, deserves to be reminded of her duty by superior authority.

The board of health disapproves of allowing children to attend school while ill with whooping cough.

One member of the board seen yesterday stated that there is great danger of pneumonia developing from whooping cough at this season.

The importance of this subject may be more clear from the fact that already several children have died from whooping cough or diseases to which it led.

I. W. HARPER

NELSON COUNTY, KENTUCKY,
WHISKY

Gold Medals Received for Standard of Quality and Purity at New Orleans, 1885, World's Fair, Chicago, 1893.

Dear Sir:
Do you keep whisky in your house? We presume you do; else you are an exception to the rule.
If you are threatened with consumption there is no treatment equal to one or two drinks each day.
If you have a bad cold a warm toddy at bed time is the thing. In Scarlet Fever, Pneumonia, LaGrippe and Typhoid Fever it is necessary.
When you are tired, it will strengthen you. When downhearted, it will cheer you up. It is a friend in need and a friend indeed.
But you should not abuse a friend, therefore use whisky wisely. If you do not abuse it, it will ever be your faithful servant. If you abuse it, it will make you its slave.
No man becomes a drunkard save after years of determined effort in that direction. Take our advice; use whisky wisely. Don't buy cheap whisky, but buy the best.
Do you ask which is the best? The question shows that you are not posted.
Well the best whisky is that known as the "I. W. Harper." This is a fine Sour Mash, made down in Nelson County, Kentucky, and we are the authorized agents at this place.
We shall be pleased to have you sample it. Its excellent quality speaks for itself.
Respectfully,
JNO NOLAN,
7 Whipple St., Lowell, Mass.

SOME CRISP COSSIP.

Colonel Henry A. Thomas, private secretary to Governor Greenhalge, is a busy man these days. He is filling many engagements in behalf of the governor, who is ill at his home in Lowell. At a banquet the other evening he remarked that the situation reminded him of an epitaph he had read somewhere and which is as follows:

Here lies the body of Mary Ann,
Safe in the bosom of Abrahám;
'Tis all very nice for Mary Ann,
But mighty hard for Abrahám.

He then made the application that it was very nice for him to thus enjoy himself, but rather hard on the governor. Just the same, Colonel Thomas is a mighty interesting after dinner speaker.—Boston Post.

SHADOWING THE CARRIERS.

Honest Men Have Nothing to Fear From Detectives.

The letter carriers of Boston and vicinity are again up in arms on account of the presence of what they term the obnoxious government secret service man from the department at Washington.

Last week he was in Cambridge and yesterday he was reported at the South End. There are said to be at least three of them, and it is positively known that two were placed under arrest in Cambridge as suspicions characters one afternoon last week.

They at first refused to give their names, but when threatened by the police with a night's lodging in a cell they produced their badge and credentials. This was sufficient proof and both were discharged.

All over the country the carriers have begun to interest themselves in the matter and have already taken steps to have the detectives removed. The claim is based upon the fact that many honest men are followed about on their route, which is not only an injustice to them but an outrage.

The men are said to have been in this city but they might as well have stayed away as our local department does not need watching.

Their observations, however, prove them strictly honest for they complimented our carriers as being unexcelled in the country.

BASE BALL TALK.

What Clubs Are Preparing for the Season's Work.

The Emerald base ball team is preparing for the coming season, even at this early date, and already has given an order to Wright & Ditson of Boston for a set of the finest uniforms ever sent here.

The club will have about the same personnel as last year. Connors will pitch, and Con Donovan will probably go behind the bat until Dan Murphy returns from Mt. St. Mary's college, where, at present, he is in active training for the opening of the season, which occurs earlier in that part of the country.

Dan and the late Frank Sullivan were two of the finest ball players who ever attended the grand old college on the mountain. Mike Mitchell of the Emeralds has been giving his attention to pool during the winter and appears to be one the cleverest performers with the cue in town. "Dada" Garrigan, Peter's little brother, Pop Smith, Andy Rourke and the rest of the club are all in fine condition.

The semi-professional clubs such as the Emeralds, South Ends, Emmetts, Florence club, T. R. and T's and St. John's put up excellent games and a series between them would be a paying venture.

There may be a railroad league here this season, but even if such is the case the patrons of the game will not miss any such exhibitions as the Emeralds vs. South Ends, or St. John's vs. T. R. and T's have been known to put up.

Shines and McCarthy will in all probability be taken into the New England league, though they have not been signed yet.

THE TARIFF BILL

Laid on the Shelf by the Senate.

LIVELY DEBATE INDULGED IN BY THE REPUBLICANS.

Cong. Teller Aroused by Morrill's Remarks.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—A widely published story attracted attention at the Capitol to the effect that the Republican senators of all factions had agreed that there could and would be no tariff legislation this session, and had instructed Senator Morrill (Vt.) to make a statement to that effect on the floor of the senate at the earliest opportunity.

Senator Morrill, when asked yesterday whether the story were true, answered: "On the contrary, it is my purpose to ask the senate today to take up the tariff bill for consideration."

Senator Morrill was as good as his word, bringing the tariff question to a test vote at the earliest practicable moment on a motion to take up the tariff bill for consideration. The vote stood: Yeas, 22; nays, 33. At the close of the vote he announced that it was obvious that there was not a Republican majority in the senate, and that he did not feel authorized, under the circumstances, to waste further time on this bill; but he added that the Republicans on the finance committee were ready to consider any tariff measure their colleagues in the party might think wise to pass.

The vote in detail was as follows:

Yeas—Messrs. Aldrich, Allison, Baker, Burrows, Cameron, Clark, Cullom, Davis, Elkins, Gear, Hale, Hansbrough, Hawley, Lodge, Mitchell (Or.), Morrill, Nelson, Perkins, Proctor, Quay, Sherman, Shoup —22.

Nays—Allen, Bacon, Bate, Berry, Butler, Caffrey, Call, Cannon, Carter, Chilton, Cockrell, Dubois, George, Gordon, Gray, Harris, Hill, Jones (Nev.), Kyle, Lindsay, Mantle, Martin, Morgan, Palmer, Pasco, Peffer, Roach, Stewart, Teller, Turpie, Vest, Walthall, White—33.

Teller's Resentment.

Mr. Teller (Rep., Colo.) took offense at Morrill's remark that there was not a Republican majority, saying that it was the attempt of Mr. Morrill to read the silver Republicans out of the party. He notified that senator that he and his colleagues, who believed in the cause of silver, had been as zealous and worked as long in the Republican party as the senator from Vermont or his colleagues. The silver Republicans did not propose to be read out of the party, they would only go when they saw fit. They could, he assured the senate, get along as well without the party as the party could without them.

Mr. Sherman (Rep., O.) said that every day since the passage of the present law the country had been running in debt, and there was no occasion for it. Already there had been issued $268,000,000 of bonds by this administration. The great body of it was for deficiencies of revenue. Speaking of the tariff bill, Mr. Sherman said: "Let us take this bill up, and if it is not a perfect bill, let us make it so. Let us give the government revenue. Our duty is not yet performed. If the chairman of the committee will not move to take up the bill again, I will. I will make the motion at the proper time."

Mr. Harris asked Mr. Sherman why he did not advise the treasury to issue the $50,000,000 of seigniorage and the balance of the silver to meet the deficiencies.

Mr. Sherman, in reply, said that question had been tried and tested. The house of representatives pronounced their denunciation of that most foolish and dangerous fallacy by a vote of almost 2 to 1. This senate did not represent the people; it represented the states, and Sherman called attention to the fact that more than 10 votes cast in the senate came from states whose aggregate of population did not equal one-third that of the state of New York.

Silver Sentiment Dying Out.

Sherman warned Harris that the cause of free silver would never be so strong in the future as it had been in the past. The sober second thought of the people of this country, as expressed by their representatives in the popular branch of congress, was for sound money and against free coinage, and the sentiment in that direction was rapidly and surely growing.

Mr. Frye said that he had advised all his constituents who were business men that the house tariff bill was as dead as Julius Cæsar, and that he hoped no attempt would be made to resurrect it.

The senate was entertained later by an interesting bimetallic colloquy. Teller declared, in reply to Morrill's speech, that the house tariff bill was nothing but an electioneering scheme, got up to promote the presidential interests of a certain candidate. Sherman announced that he, like Morrill, was ready to vote for any tariff measure promising treasury relief, whether taxing tea, coffee, or both.

Allen (Neb.), after Stewart's tirade, asked Senator Aldrich whether he would vote for the tariff bill, with a free coinage attachment? Aldrich said "he would not." Allen declared that this reply showed the hypocrisy of the Republicans in passing bimetallic resolutions everywhere and yet refusing to vote for a bimetallic measure. A bimetallic colloquy of considerable warmth ensued.

Platt (Conn.) maintained that he was a true bimetallist, as was his party, but opposed to silver monometallism. Whereupon Teller, Mitchell (Or.) and Stewart joined the affray in charging bad faith in interpreting the meaning of the term bimetallism, and cited the Republican platform criticisms of the first Cleveland administration, because of its unfriendliness to silver.

Platt declared that when the silver men had reached a readiness to throw over protection by attaching free coinage to it, the death knell of the silver delusion and craze had struck.

Indian Appropriation Bill Passed.

The house passed the Indian appropriation bill, the sixth of the 13 general appropriation bills, and sent it to the senate. It was thought that a yea and nay vote would be had on the Linton sectarian school amendment which passed Monday, but the demand was not made.

The house also passed, without debate, the Dingley bill, authorizing the secretary of the treasury to take and kill the Alaskan seal herd if a modus vivendi could not be concluded before the opening of the present season for the protection of the seals pending negotiations for permanent protection to the herds with the countries interested.

The Van Horn-Tarsney contested election case from the Fifth Missouri district occupied the remainder of the afternoon. The majority report favors Van Horn, the contestant, who is a Republican, while the Democrats and one Republican favor recommitting the case with instructions to reopen the testimony, purge the returns of fraud and recount the honest ballots.

The Buyard Case.

Chairman Hitt, of the foreign affairs committee, yesterday reported to the house the preamble and resolutions agreed to by the foreign affairs committee, censuring Ambassador Bayard for portions of speeches he delivered at Edinburgh and Boston, Eng. The resolutions follow:

Resolved, That it is the sense of the house of representatives that Thomas F. Bayard, ambassador of the United States to Great Britain, in publicly using the language above quoted, has committed an offense against diplomatic propriety and an abuse of the privileges of his exalted position, which should make him the representative of the whole country, and not of any political party. Such utterances are wholly inconsistent with that prudent, delicate and scrupulous reserve which he himself, while secretary of state, enjoined upon all diplomatic agents of the United States. In one speech he offends a great body of his countrymen who believe in the policy of protection. In the other he offends all his countrymen who believe that Americans are capable of self-government; therefore, as the immediate representatives of the American people, and in their name, we condemn and censure said utterances of Thomas F. Bayard.

Resolved, further, That in the opinion of the house of representatives, public speeches by our diplomatic or consular officers abroad, which display partisanship or which condemn any political party or party policy or organization of citizens in the United States, are in dereliction of the duty of such officers, impair their usefulness as public servants and diminish the confidence which they should always command at home and abroad.

Christ's Second Coming.

BOSTON, Feb. 25.—The mid-winter prophetic convention of the Second Adventists opened here yesterday. The following officers were elected: President, G. H. Wallace, Springfield; vice presidents, W. J. Hobbs, Boston; F. Burr, Somerville; secretary, F. L. Piper, Boston. President Wallace, in his annual address, said: The people have been called out to herald the second coming of Christ to this world. We are not looking for the end of the world by total annihilation. We are looking for the redemption, and for that Christ is coming back to this earth. We are looking for the end of the age. The world is not going out of existence; it will last forever, but in a restored state. All indications seem to point to the fulfillment of the great promises by God in the Bible. There has been no time when these prophetic signs have become so apparent as the present.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE

ADJOURNS TO ATTEND EX-GOV. ROBINSON'S FUNERAL.

Question as to Appointing Women Notaries Public.

BOSTON, Feb. 26.—The senate adopted an order that, when it adjourns, it be to meet on Thursday afternoon.

An order was adopted that when the house adjourns it be to meet on Thursday, Feb. 27, 1896, at 2 o'clock, on account of the funeral of the late ex-Governor Robinson. Previous to the adoption of the order, Speaker Meyer, who took the floor for that purpose, advocated its passage as a fitting recognition of the character and public services of the deceased.

In the senate a committee of seven members were appointed to attend, with the president, the funeral of the late ex-Governor George D. Robinson at Chicopee.

The speaker appointed 12 members as a committee on the part of the house to attend the funeral of the late ex-Governor Robinson. The speaker, in accordance with the terms of the order adopted by the house, is also a member of the committee, but will not be able to attend the funeral.

When the bill providing for retaliation when the insurance brokers of this commonwealth are discriminated against by other states came up in the senate for enactment, Mr. Malone moved that it be tabled. He had consulted the law department, and there was some doubt as to its constitutionality. The bill was tabled.

On motion of Mr. Roe an amendment was adopted to the resolve to provide for completing and furnishing the gymnasium of the Worcester normal school, increasing the appropriation from $6,000 to $12,000, and the resolve passed to be engrossed.

Mr. Slade offered an order in the house requesting the opinion of the supreme judicial court as to whether the legislature can legally authorize the governor and council to appoint women notaries public. The order, at the request of Mr. Mellen, was laid over.

EVA BOOTH'S MISSION.

Will Endeavor to Induce Ballington Booth to Withdraw Charges.

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—Commissioner Eva Booth, who is now in command of the American division of the Salvation Army, yesterday made a full statement of her intended action. She said that the trouble between Ballington Booth and international headquarters grew out of a letter which Ballington Booth wrote on Jan. 31, in reply to his recall from the American command. In this letter he made two definite charges—one against the incompetency of his father as an individual, and the other against the methods of the army. Commissioner Booth's presence was in the hope of inducing Commander Booth to withdraw those charges. When he insisted, she tried to induce him to submit the matter to arbitration, which he also refused.

Until the new commanders, Commissioner and Mrs. Booth-Tucker, arrive, Commissioner Eva Booth will devote all her efforts to keeping matters quiet. The property is a second consideration, but she expects no trouble in getting it. The general's reply to his son's charges is expected on Saturday's steamer, and there will be then a further hearing.

W. Brantwell Booth, chief of staff, cabled a manifesto to the army in the United States last night. It is a general appeal to the loyalty of the officers, soldiers and recruits. "Your late beloved and honored commanders have refused to obey the general's orders," he says, "and have resigned, and an attempt is now being made by some people to repeat the scandal and the disgrace of the Moore infamy."

The manifesto says Eva Booth has been named as acting commander, "pending the appointment of a new territorial leader." These words, in some quarters, are taken as an indication that Booth-Tucker has not yet been selected officially to succeed Ballington Booth.

Got Nothing For Their Pains.

WARREN, Ark., Feb. 26.—A daring but unsuccessful attempt was made to rob the Merchants' and Planters' bank of this place yesterday. About 3:30 o'clock three men entered the bank, and two of them went behind the enclosure, where Cashier Adair was in conversation with T. M. Goodwin and D. W. Sutton. Their first salutation was: "Hold up your hands." Mr. Adair sprang for his pistol, when the men commenced shooting, and Goodwin received what is thought to be a mortal wound and Adair was shot through the shoulder. He returned the fire and wounded one of the men. The robbers did not accomplish their objects. As they rode out of town they kept up a fusilade of shots.

President Zelaya has a number of troops 40 miles west of this city, but he is without information as to the exact doings of the revolutionists. The forces of the Conservative party have all rallied to the support of the president during the present crisis.

Changed Their Minds.

BOSTON, Feb. 26.—The school committee last night reconsidered the previous vote and granted Miss Frieda M. Bethmann, principal of the Thomas N. Hart kindergarten, leave of absence till April 1. Miss Bethmann left for Washington several weeks ago to teach the children of President Cleveland, although the school committee refused to grant a leave of absence.

Ready to Face Charges.

JOHNSTON, R. I., Feb. 26.—Mrs. Clara Valois appeared yesterday in the office of Judge Phillips, saying she wished to surrender herself, as she was charged with shooting her father. Judge Phillips said that as the warrant for her arrest had been taken to another town by a deputy, she could not be held until later. Mrs. Valois declares the charge is ridiculous.

And hard usage left weak spots for later trouble.

Lame backs and weak kidneys are relics of soldier days.

The men of 30 who have lame backs, in most cases had army experience.

These are the badges the boys don't want.

But having them they are learning the cure.

A REAL ROMANCE

Ends in Domestic Love and Happiness.

MR. AND MRS. ENTWISTLE NOW RESIDE IN LOWELL.

A Case in Which Love Defied Prison Bars.

After a most troubled and almost tragic career, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Entwistle have settled down in this city and are enjoying all the happiness of married life.

It will be remembered that Harry Entwistle and Maria Clegg were married last April upon the former being pardoned from prison and they went to Europe on their wedding tour.

Now they have returned and are living on Corbett street, the husband working in the spinning room of the Massachusetts mills.

Harry Entwistle and Maria Clegg were lovers for some time previous to the summer of 1891 when a quarrel caused Miss Clegg to refuse to see her lover. Then the latter became dejected and resolved to do something desperate. He first determined to take his own life but in a moment of undoubted mental aberation he shot Miss Clegg.

The tragic proceeding took place on the evening of Oct. 7, 1891. The operatives were coming out of the mills and Miss Clegg was walking with a friend when her former lover came behind her and without a moment's warning fired four or five shots at her, one entering her lungs. She fell on the sidewalk and in the confusion Entwistle escaped.

He had an excellent opportunity to escape, but after he had walked as far as Wamesit he became filled with remorse and returned to the city, walking into the police station about midnight and giving himself up.

Miss Clegg, though at first considered in a critical condition, recovered, yet Entwistle was sentenced to 15 years' imprisonment.

Then the case gradually went out of the public mind, and nothing was thought of the unfortunate man until last April, when it was announced that Entwistle was soon to be pardoned at the intercession of Miss Clegg, that the pair were to be married and would reside with his folks in England.

Toward the end of the month they were married, and they remained in England until a short time ago.

Mrs. Entwistle, interviewed said: "My married life has been as happy as I could wish. My husband is as kind and as good as any woman could desire.

"Both of us liked England well enough, but preferred to live in the United States."

BOXING GOSSIP.

"Jack" McDonough claims that he was ready to box "Mike" Moore in Lawrence Saturday night, but the latter failed to put in an appearance. McDonough weighed in at 149 1-5 pounds and claimed the forfeit money, which was given him.

The matching of Martin Flaherty and Spike Sullivan by the City Point Athletic club for its boxing entertainment at Music hall, Boston, March 5, has created as much interest, almost, as the much discussed contest between George Godfrey and Nick Burley, the Californian heavyweight, to which the Flaherty-Sullivan contest is a preliminary. Flaherty has long been recognized as one of the foremost men of his weight in the country, and his recent defeat over Danny McBride at the New York A. C., advanced him a notch nearer the goal of his ambition—the championship of the world.

IN CITY COUNCIL

Howe for Water Board and Cahill for Messenger.

THE WANNALANCIT LOT TO BE PURCHASED.

President Webster Pleads in Behalf of Assessors.

Last night's meeting of the aldermen was a special one, called especially for the purpose of drawing jurors.

The aldermen elected James Cahill city messenger, thereby non-concurring with the council, and reaffirmed its choice of Alderman Howe for the water board.

Michael J. O'Boyle and several others sent in notice of claims for damages for injuries received.

On motion of Alderman Crowley, all these notices were ordered on file in the city clerk's office. This is the way all similar claims will be treated in the future, and in case any person desires a hearing before the committee on claims, he will be obliged to send in a petition to that effect.

Rev. Fr. Guillard, O. M. I., petitioned for the acceptance of Lundberg street and the construction of a bridge across the Boston & Maine tracks on that street.

A communication was received from the school board asking for a four room addition to the Varnum school.

Another communication from the school board protesting against the location of the new Bartlett school on the city ledge lot was referred.

Several petitions for minor licenses were referred.

Artemas B. Woodward was nominated and confirmed as surveyor of lumber.

C. J. Cheney, P. A. Brousseau, W. H. Harrigan, and M. J. Maguire were nominated and confirmed as weighers of coal.

Fred Conant was nominated as a surveyor of lumber.

Thomas H. Kelley and Michael E. McDonald were nominated as constables, and James Ready as boiler inspector.

The following travers jurors were drawn to serve at the Lowell term of the Superior court, the second Monday in March: George Carson, Middlesex yard; John F. Monaghan, 18 Bleachery street; Andrew Rourk, 455 Market street; Eugene F. Morrill, 136 Fort Hill avenue; Thomas McKenna, 86 Belmont avenue; Philip H. Ilsley, 513 Westford street.

William J. Healand and David G. Common were nominated as call men on the fire department.

A resolution to borrow $25,000 to be placed to the credit of a fund to be used for paving streets, took its final passage. Alderman Crowley voted against the resolution.

The resolution ordering that the streets of the city be sprinkled during the year, was introduced.

Alderman Wilson wanted the resolution amended so that the commons department will be exempt from paying any street watering tax.

Alderman Flemings opposed the amendment and said the commons department charges the street department for dumping snow on the commons.

Alderman Wilson said that the street department never paid a cent for dumping snow on the commons.

"Then," said Alderman Crowley, "the street committee should be indicted by the grand jury for creating a public nuisance by piling snow on the commons."

Alderman Wilson's amendment was lost. Alderman Crowley moved to lay the resolution on the table. The motion was lost. Alderman Wilson gave notice of reconsideration at the next meeting.

A resolution was passed authorizing the water board to hold land up near the Chelmsford line for the purpose of extending its water works plant.

Alderman Dow moved to ballot for a member of the water board on the part of the aldermen. The ballot resulted in five for Alderman Howe and two for Alderman Wilson and the former was declared elected on the part of the aldermen.

Then Alderman Dow moved to take a ballot for city messenger. The result was announced as follows: James H. Cahill 5, Frank C. Going 2, and Mr. Cahill was declared elected on the part of the aldermen.

An order was read asking that the lands and buildings committee and the mayor consider the expediency of reducing expenses at Huntington and Jackson halls. The order was laid on the table.

An amendment to the ordinance was introduced authorizing the mayor to nominate subject to confirmation by the aldermen, six assistant assessors in March or April, said assessors to hold office till next January when the mayor will nominate subject to confirmation by the aldermen six assistant assessors to hold office for two years.

An order was adopted directing the city solicitor to keep the city council posted on all matters coming before the legislature relating to the city of Lowell.

A recess of 15 minutes was taken.

At 9.30 the board reassembled and an order was read authorizing the city clerk to present free passes to all places of amusement in the city to the councilmen. The order was referred to the committee on licenses.

The board then adjourned.

COMMON COUNCIL.

The council last night devoted considerable time to a consideration of the sections in the salary resolution laid on the table at the last meeting.

Several of the councilmen took part in the discussion, Pres. Webster being particularly prominent.

Mr. Hartwell moved that the salary of the Police board be the same as last year.

Mr. Hounsell favored the motion, and said he thought the commissioners are underpaid.

The motion of Mr. Hartwell was passed, the council thereby non-concurring with the aldermen.

The salaries of members of the police force were accepted as sent down by the aldermen.

Mr. Rivet moved that the salaries of assessors remain the same as last year.

This brought Pres. Webster to the floor, and he read a lengthy paper advocating paying the assessors a good salary.

The motion of Mr. Rivet passed.

Mr. Penn introduced a motion that the city engineer devote all of his time to the city, except that he be allowed to give expert testimony.

Mr. Hounsell objected that a motion to the contrary had been passed.

The chair ruled that the question was on the acceptance of the whole report, and that any new business could be introduced under that head.

Mr. Penn's motion was defeated, and the resolution as amended was then passed.

The resolution authorizing the lands and buildings committee to purchase a site for a new Bartlett school on Wannalancit street, at a price not to exceed 25 cents per square foot, came up for a second reading.

Mr. Hallett objected to the price on the ground that the land was assessed for but 15 cents.

Mr. Miskella favored the city ledge lot and said:

"I desire to say a few words on this matter. I was a member of the committee on education last year and with the rest of the committee inspected the Bartlett school. I was impressed at that time with the fact that there should be another school built in place of the present Bartlett school. At that time I was in favor of selecting the so-called ledge site. My reason was that the city owned a tract of land which could be used with advantage for school purposes and the city and taxpayers would be saved a considerable sum of money. And further, I have come in contact with a number of people who claim that the interests of the school children in the Bartlett school district could be better served by building the school on the ledge site. Now, Mr. Chairman, we hear a great deal at the present time about reform and retrenching expenditures. The committee on education have it in their power to save a large sum of money and gain the gratitude of the taxpayers by voting to recommend the ledge site. I say have it in their power because this body, I think, will refer the report back to the committee."

Mr. Hounsell opposed the ledge lot and the resolution passed by a vote of 14 to 11.

An amendment to the ordinances was introduced by Mr. Rivet. It provided that there should be but six assistant assessors for the ensuing years, their election to be for two years. It was referred.

Mr. Penn introduced a joint order requesting the city solicitor to keep the city council posted on all new laws pending in the legislature affecting the city. Adopted.

Mr. Hallett introduced a joint order asking the mayor and committee on buildings to inquire into the expense of maintaining Huntington and Jackson halls, with a view to reducing the same.

Mr. Miskella and Mr. Reynolds objected to the order and thought it was a matter that should come to the attention of the lands and buildings committee.

The order was adopted.

The resolution transferring the care of the boulevard from the street to the commons department was defeated. Mr. Dickson gave notice of reconsideration at the next meeting.

A joint order introduced by Mr. Reynolds, asking the aldermen to make it a condition of theatrical licenses that councilmen be admitted free of charge was adopted.

The order for a special committee to confer in the matter of removing the restrictions from the land in the rear of the Market building was adopted in concurrence. Messrs. Hunton, Pihl and Miskella were appointed on the committee.

The joint order relating to the issuing of registered bonds was adopted in concurrence.

MATRIMONIAL.

The marriage of Mr. Milo W. Hale, Jr., who has charge of the cloak department of Cook & Taylor's establishment and Miss Luetta S. Winchester, an estimable young resident of the Highlands occurred yesterday afternoon at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. John K. Winchester, 49 Marginal street. The ceremony occurred in the parlor which was beautifully decorated with ferns and potted plants and was witnessed by only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. E. Fisher of the First Universalist church and the bride was attended by her sister, Miss Maud Winchester, the best man being Mr. A. G. McCurdy. The bride was very becomingly attired in blue silk while her maid wore white. After the ceremony the happy young couple received the hearty congratulations of all assembled after which a collation was served. At 5 o'clock amid a shower of rice Mr. and Mrs. Hale departed on their wedding tour which will embrace a visit to New York and upon their return will reside at 49 Marginal street.

Welch; aids, Misses Nora O. Johnson, Fannie A. Welch, Marcia C. Coggeshall, M. BOARD OF HEALTH

Will Cause All Teachers to Be Notified

To Attend---at THE SUN'S Suggestion Yesterday.

The board of health held a regular meeting yesterday afternoon and decided that the public safety demands that no pupil who is suffering from whooping cough should be allowed to attend school.

The board took this action because of the article published in yesterday's SUN calling attention to a case where a pupil suffering with whooping cough was permitted by his teacher to attend school.

All teachers in the city will be notified of the action of the board so that in the future scholars whom they suspect to be suffering from whooping cough may be prohibited from attending school.

It is very remarkable that neither the school board nor the board of health had any rule forbidding children having whooping cough attending school.

After being notified by the board of health there will be no misunderstanding on the matter and the pupils will be better protected.

CITY HALL GOSSIP.

The regular monthly meeting of the overseers of the poor will be held at the city farm tomorrow afternoon. It is said that there will be opposition to the plan to extend the term of office of Superintendent Pindar.

The session of the evening schools will terminate Friday evening. The high school, however, will continue one week longer.

Mayor Courtney has been invited to attend a dinner to be given by Mayor Quincy of Boston at the Parker house, next Saturday, when the question of taxation will be discussed. The mayors of all Massachusetts cities have been invited to be present as well as the president of the local boards of trade.

The reference of the order providing for free passes to all theatrical performances for the common councilmen, to the license committee, means, according to one alderman, that the order will be pigeonholed for the remainder of the year.

The next move of the water board will probably be to pump all driven well water to the reservoir and from there distribute it through the city, instead of pumping from the plants direct to the mains, as is now done.

A member of the water board says that this department spends more money than it should, and expresses the opinion that the introduction of the meter system will reduce expenses and also water rates.

On two days, recently, 11,000,000 gals. of water were used on each day. It cost about $16 to pump 1,000,000 gallons, and the opinion is expressed that this quantity should be pumped for $6.

Why

Do people buy Hood's Sarsaparilla in preference to any other,—in fact almost to the exclusion of all others?

Because

They know from actual use that Hood's is the best, i. e., it cures when others fail. Hood's Sarsaparilla is still made under the personal supervision of the educated pharmacists who originated it.

The question of best is just as positively decided in favor of Hood's as the question of comparative sales.

Another thing: Every advertisement of Hood's Sarsaparilla is true, is honest.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

THE FIRST CONG. CHURCH

INJUNCTION HEARING FIXED FOR FRIDAY.

The Lessees Are Dejected—They Will be Opposed by a Majority of the Society.

Despite statements of the Mail to the contrary, the hearing on the Kenngott injunction is scheduled for Friday.

The lessees would like to get out of it as a majority of the society has turned against the Twelve Apostles and will oppose them in court.

The Times took the statement of THE SUN on this matter in oppositon to the Mail's statement and was correct.

The Mail appears to be making an effort to mislead the other papers as to the date of the hearing, or can it really be so misinformed upon this interesting case as appears from its columns?

THEATRICAL NEWS.

Savoy Theatre.

It is not a common thing for an artist to entertain an audience for thirty minutes, as Miss Hilda Thomas at the Savoy does, assisted by Mr. Frank Barry as pianist. He has as complete control of his instrument as she does of her audience. She represents an actress in the play and her talent does the rest. Certainly in green slippers red stockings, a starched skirt, and waist with pink flowers on it, and a hat that would excite the risibilities of a quaker, in trying to do a sand dance, she gives them as comical and laughable a character representation as was ever seen in this city.

Baldwin and Daly, as the happy Hottentots in their wonderful tumbling acts, made a great hit. Gilbert Sarony as the giddy old maid, kept the audience in a continual roar from his first appearance to his exit.

Deaves Marionettes gave a very pleasing entertainment. While Barry and Bannon, as Irish character artists, did some clever laughable business. The other acts were all good and the performance from beginning to finish was one of the best ever seen on a vaudeville stage.

Music Hall

Uncle Hiram continues to make a big hit at this popular place of amusement, notwithstanding the many rival attractions. The closing performance will be given this afternoon and evening. If the claims of the management are realized, Music hall promises a genuine dramatic sensation for the last half of the week, when the great postal drama, "Special Delivery," is to be the bill. The play has a consistent and entertaining plot, and the scenic effects are superb.

He Got Free Drinks.

It is a novel manner that a man giving his name as John Kelly, has adopted for getting free drinks. He went into three or four different bar-rooms, this morning, and represented that his child was dead and that he wanted to have some liquor and cigars sent to his house at 224 Moody street. He wanted the best liquors and of course sampled two or three kinds.

In one place he ordered $7 worth, and said he would return and pay for it as soon as he had gone to the undertaker's. While in this place another liquor dealer whom he had "worked" earlier in the morning, came in and said to him, "Hello, Kelly, did you bury that child yet?" "No—tomorrow," responded the stranger, as he shot out through the doorway.

To make his bluff good in one place he "worked" his scheme, he ordered a cake of ice from an ice cart driver who was present.

THE FALL RIVER TROUBLE

OVER CERTAIN REMARKS OF A SCHOOL TEACHER.

Insulting to Catholic Pupils Regarding Their Religion—An Investigation Likely to Follow.

According to the Fall River Globe, Miss Grinnell, a teacher in one of the schools, committed a very grave offense in insulting her Catholic pupils by contemptuous reference to their religion. Here is the story as told by the Globe:

Three children stated to a Globe reporter that their teacher had said Tuesday afternoon in connection with Ash Wednesday: (Friday's Globe is quoted:) "She didn't want any of her pupils late the next day (Ash Wednesday), because they could go to church and get a "daub" and be back early, like the children did last year. Then Miss Grinnell is alleged to have said substantially: "If you go to church come right back to school, and those who don't get a daub can find plenty of ash barrels around my house."

Then the teacher is alleged to have gone to a speaking tube in the room and repeated the same insulting speech to another teacher in the building.

But this is not all. Miss Grinnell further is reported to have said that she didn't know whether the St. Patrick's day parade would go by the school or not, but if it did she would let the children go to the windows. "Anyway," she is alleged to have said, "I haven't got straightened out yet, I don't know just how many St. Patrick's I've got."

A third child repeated substantially what the second and first had said, though all were seen at different times, and each spoke without the knowledge of what any others had said.

Much feeling was wrought up by the story of the teacher's scoffing words. Catholic mothers and fathers were indignant and yesterday the matter was discussed in the convention of Irish and Catholic societies. The general sentiment of the city is that a teacher should not give herself the opportunity of venting bigotry or belittling remarks as to the faith of anyone, and that spleen or forgetfulness does not constitute a sufficient excuse for a slur on religion or any of its forms. A greater stir has been created by the words alleged to be used by the teacher than most people imagine.

She denies the phraseology quoted by the children, but admits warning them not to be late on account of attending church. The matter will probably be investigated by the school board.

A TWO YEARS' SENTENCE

Given James Kenney in the Superior Court at Cambridge Yesterday—His Companion Was Placed on Probation.

In the Superior court, yesterday, Judge Sheldon considered the case of James Kenney and Mary Collins charged with lewd and lascivious cohabitation. The man is middle aged, while the girl is not yet out of her teens.

Both came here from across the water last June. The girl had been a servant in Kenny's family and was seduced under a promise of marriage. Upon coming here they lived together and Kenny got a license to marry but never had any ceremony performed. In court he claimed that a clergyman refused to marry him without money. But the court understood the fact that such was not the case and sentenced Kenny to the house of correction for two years while the girl was placed on probation on recommendation of Deputy McQuade.

Olney's boom swept over the country like a lightning flash and has elicited a great deal of favorable comment. The New York World is the first to strike against Olney. It designates him as the aristocratic plutocrat and charges that he is too much in sympathy with corporations to enforce the law against them.

Roentgen, like many another famous discoverer, has succeeded only in making a practical application of the discovery of another. Lenard elucidated cathode rays and Nikola Tesla provided the apparatus for their application in photography. Therefore to Lenard and Tesla, even more than to Roentgen, the world is indebted for cathode photography.

TEACHERS' COMPLAINT.

The teachers of the public schools complain of being trotted out too often to meetings some of which they say are of no importance. The aim of Supt. Whitcomb undoubtedly is, to keep them in touch with the progress of the times. They say, however, that after attending so many meetings they are too tired to do successful work in their class rooms. The new ideas they may procure will not compensate for their physical exhaustion. If their statements can be relied upon, the excessive number of meetings are a detriment rather than a help to the schools.

NO LOAN NEEDED.

The municipal reformers are still, it seems, looking for arguments in favor of their petition for authority to borrow $200,000 outside the debt limit. There are sufficient funds at command, to erect all the schools needed without appealing to the legislature and without borrowing any money.

The $86,000 obtained for the old city hall, the $250,000 to be turned over by the sinking fund commissioners and the money that can be secured by the sale of the old Bartlett school property would more than suffice to build all the additional schools needed for two years to come

HINTS TO TRAVELERS.

How the Meek Wanderer Should Conduct Himself When on the Rail.

The following hints and observations have occurred to me during a recent trip across the continent. They are written in no spirit of complaint against existing railroad methods, but merely in the hope that they may prove useful to those who travel, like myself, in a spirit of meek, observant ignorance:

1. Sleeping in a Pullman car presents some difficulties to the novice. Care should be taken to allay all sense of danger. The frequent whistling of the engine during the night is apt to be a source of alarm. Find out, therefore, before traveling the meaning of the various whistles. One means "station," two "railroad crossing," and so on. Five whistles, short and rapid, mean sudden danger. When you hear whistles in the night, sit up smartly in your bunk and count them. Should they reach five draw on your trousers over your pyjamas and leave the train instantly. As a further precaution against accident sleep with the feet toward the engine if you prefer to have the feet crushed, or with the head toward the engine if you think it best to have the head crushed. In making this decision try to be as unselfish as possible. If indifferent, sleep crosswise, with the head hanging over into the aisle.

2. I have devoted some thought to the proper method of changing trains. The system which I have observed to be most popular with travelers of my own class is something as follows: Suppose that you have been told on leaving New York that you are to change at Kansas City. The evening before approaching Kansas City stop the conductor in the aisle of the car—you can do this best by putting out your foot and tripping him—and say politely, "Do I change at Kansas City?"

He says, "Yes."

Very good. Don't believe him. On going into the dining car for supper take a negro aside and put it to him as a personal matter between a white man and a black whether he thinks you ought to change at Kansas City. Don't be satisfied with this. In the course of the evening pass through the entire train from time to time and say to people casually, "Oh, can you tell me if I change at Kansas City?" Ask the conductor about it a few more times in the evening. A repetition of the question will insure pleasant personal relations with him. Before falling asleep watch for his passage and ask him through the curtains of your berth, "Oh, by the way, did you say I changed at Kansas City?" If he refuses to stop, hook him by the neck with your walking stick and draw him gently to your bedside. In the morning when the train stops and a man calls, "Kansas City—all change!" approach the conductor again and say, "Is this Kansas City?" Don't be discouraged at his answer. Pick yourself up and go to the other end of the car and say to the brakeman, "Do you know, sir, if this is Kansas City?" Don't be too easily convinced. Remember that both brakeman and conductor may be in collusion to deceive you. Look round therefore for the name of the station on the signboard. Having found it, alight and ask the first man you see if this is Kansas City. He will answer: "Why, where in blank are your blank eyes? Can't you see it there, plain as blank?" When you hear language of this sort, ask no more. You are now in Missouri, and this is Kansas City.

3. I have observed that it is now the practice of the conductors to stick bits of paper in the hats of the passengers. They do this, I believe, to mark which ones they like best. The device is pretty and adds much to the scenic appearance of the car. But I notice, with pain, that the system is fraught with much trouble for the conductors. The task of crushing two or three passengers together in order to reach over them and stick a ticket into the chinks of a silk skullcap, is embarrassing for a conductor of refined feelings. It would be simpler if the conductor should carry a small hammer and a packet of shingle nails and nail the paid up passenger to the back of the seat, or, better still, let the conductor carry a small pot of paint and a brush and mark the passengers in such a way that he cannot easily mistake them. In the case of baldheaded passengers the hats might be politely removed and red crosses painted on the craniums. This will indicate that they are bald. Through passengers might be distinguished by a complete coat of paint. In the hands of a man of taste much might be effected by a little grouping of painted passengers and the leisure time of the conductor agreeably occupied.

4. I have observed, in traveling in the west, that the irregularity of railroad accidents is a fruitful cause of complaint. The frequent disappointment of the holders of accident policy tickets on western roads in leading to widespread protest. Certainly the conditions of travel in the west are altering rapidly, and accidents can no longer be relied upon. This is deeply to be regretted, in so much as, apart from accidents, the tickets may be sold to be practically valueless. I was brought in contact with one very sad case of a man whose mother-in-law had safely arrived in Denver from the west almost on the same day that his five surviving sons arrived in safety from St. Louis. The case was a peculiarly distressing one, since for some time the unfortunate man had found his sole means of support in sending his boys up and down over this route.—Stephen Leacock in Truth.

CROWNING OF THE CZAR

SPLENDOR AT THE CORONATION OF RUSSIA'S RULER.

Each Nation Will Try to Excel the Others In Magnificence of Gifts—All Europe Is Stirred—All Similar Events in the World's History to Be Surpassed.

It will be with ceremonies more magnificent than have ever taken place that Nicholas II will be crowned emperor of all the Russias in the Kremlin of Moscow early in May. For months past the work of preparation has been going on under the charge of Nicholas' most experienced officers, with the collaboration of the entire Greek church and hundreds of artists and master artisans.

The ceremonial will be divided into two parts—the great religious ceremony, by which the czar is actually crowned, and then the train of fetes and balls, at which all diplomatic Europe will be present. Each of these will be more imposing than those which have preceded it. In addition to this, the city of Moscow itself will be well worth the attention of even the most jaded sightseers, for every building will be decorated, and the already highly picturesque city will look even more wonderful by day and by night when the young czar comes into it for the crown of his ancestors.

Perhaps the most interesting features of this coronation are the preparations being made outside of Russian territory. The kings of Europe are deep in thought to find articles worthy of being sent on as presents. France, for example, has given her ambassador, Count Montebello, unlimited credit. This diplomat engaged, fully six months ago, a stately edifice in the finest quarter of Moscow and has fitted it up superbly. During the coronation he will give there, in the name of the republic, a series of brilliant fetes.

Montebello is now flying across the continent to personally arrange for the bric-a-brac that is to be sent on to adorn his official home—hundreds of yards of Gobelin tapestry, canvases of priceless value, exquisite marbles, bronzes, furniture of the most elaborate description and curios that originally saw the light in many a corner of the world, for all France has been ransacked for these, that the republic's seat of government at the Russian empire may be the most magnificent of any land.

Germany likewise is putting her very best foot foremost, and Prince Radolin, the personal representative of the kaiser, has been supplied with unlimited funds to make a finer showing than France, if possible. Austria has set aside 30,000 florins, or about $13,000, to hire and furnish a suitable palace in Moscow.

Great Britain is making adequate preparations also, and the probability is that she will outstrip the continental nations in gorgeousness, though such provisions as have been made are locked in the breasts of the foreign office and the embassy. England will have to do this, for the reason that the czarina is the own granddaughter of her majesty Victoria.

Moscow does not need holiday garb to make it of interest to the eye, for the roofs of the houses are blue, red or green—always some glaring, brilliant color—and the cupolas of the numberless churches are azure in hue, picked out with gold and silver stars, or else they are one shining, iridescent mass of gold, as is the enormous sanctuary of St. Vladimir. Many of the fronts of the houses are in gay colors, too, and the shops are adorned with pictorial signboards, showing the character of the business done within, all fairly good art and lavish in the amount of paint and the high, rich tints that are put upon them.

Moscow in holiday garb will be another thing. From Riga to Vladivostok and from Archangel to Kars deputations of peasants and nobles will come, laden with costly gifts. The Russian visitors alone will have to be numbered by the thousands, and, in addition to these, there will be hundreds of titled personages and notabilities from all over Europe. A special museum is to be set apart for the coronation gifts that will be received.

It is interesting to know that the reason of the selection of Moscow for the coronation is because it is the holy city of the Russias and the abiding place of the Greek church. The primate of this stupendous religious organization will place the crown upon the young czar's head, himself the head of the holy Russian church as well as ruler of the Russias. This one ceremony in the great cathedral of Moscow will be marvelously imposing. Only nobility and the priesthood will be bidden to witness it, for these alone will be sufficient to fill the whole vast edifice.—New York Journal.

Cardinal Manning's Bump of Conscience.

Although sweetie in his personal habits, the late Cardinal Manning was far from being austere, and among his intimate friends he relished telling or hearing amusing things. A story he never shrank from telling was of a sculptor who had once attempted his bust in Rome. During one of the sittings, as he was discoursing on phrenology, Manning made him point out on the head he was modeling the supposed seat of various organs and qualities. At last Manning had asked him where was the seat of conscience, upon which the sculptor had stalked across the room, and touching a certain part of the sitter's cranium remarked, "That's where it ought to be."—Household Words.

The Art of Prophecy.

"I think it will rain," the prophet says; "I think it will rain, you know;
I think it will rain today, good folk, provided it doesn't snow."
And then he climbs to his den aloft to note how the breezes blow.

"I think it will snow," the prophet says, "and so for a storm prepare,
I think it will snow tonight, good folk, provided it isn't fair."
And then he climbs to his den aloft to look at the rain gauge there.

"The weather'll be fair," the prophet says; "the weather'll be fair and warm;
The weather'll be fair today, good folk, provided it doesn't storm."
And then he climbs to his den aloft to see how the cloud banks form.

"I think it will storm," the prophet says; "I think it will storm tonight;
The wind will blow a terrible gale, provided I've hit it right."
And then he climbs to his den aloft to see if the stars are bright.

"I think he is right," the critic says; "I've followed him all along;
I think he is right tonight, good folk, provided he isn't wrong."
And that is the view I take, good folk—the point of my little song.

5 O'CLOCK EXTRA

EXPENSIVE SLIP

By Which Cuban Filibusterers Were Taken.

THE SPANISH AUTHORITIES ARE WELL PLEASED.

But Cubans Are Not Yet Discouraged.

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—The iron steamer Bermuda, flying the British flag, which was seized off Liberty island by revenue officers because she had been bought by Cuban revolutionists and was fitted out as a filibuster, is tied up at the government pier at the battery.

Benjamin J. Guerra, treasurer of the revolutionary junta, was arrested yesterday afternoon by the United States marshal. It is charged that he gave a receipt for certain money to be used in the filibustering expedition.

At the examination before Commissioner Shields, United States District Attorney MacFarlane directed the calling of General Calixto Garcia, Captain Hughes, Benjamin Guerra, Captain Brabazon and John D. Hart. The first four, through their counsel, were granted a postponement until March 3. John D. Hart asked for a speedy hearing. His examination was set down for Friday next.

General Garcia and Captain Hughes were subsequently arraigned upon another count, the two charges including the Hawkins and the Bermuda filibustering.

The charges against the five accused were made in the name of the United States, but the additional charges against General Garcia and Captain Hughes were brought by the Spanish consul. All the prisoners furnished bail and were set at liberty.

A. G. Gonzalez, a lawyer, who is a supporter of the junta, said that the expedition had cost about $100,000. The Cubans, he declared, were by no means discouraged by the present disappointment in carrying out their plans.

Spanish Authorities Happy.

A report from Washington says that while Minister Dupuy de Lome declined to speak about the Bermuda's seizure, it was learned, however, that the Spanish authorities there attach more importance to Monday night's results than to anything yet accomplished.

For at least a month they have spared no efforts to circumvent the departure of filibusters or the shipment of arms to Cuba, and every man who escaped from the foundering of the Hawkins off Long Island have been unceasingly "spotted" by the Pinkertons.

General Calixto Garcia, who led the Hawkins expedition, has been most closely watched from day to day, and spies have accompanied him to Philadelphia and other places which he visited, it is claimed, to secure support for another expedition.

The Spanish legation, it is said, was fully informed that the men from the Hawkins were held in daily readiness to re-embark, and extraordinary precautions were taken to defeat them.

When the Bermuda was secured the efforts of the detectives were redoubled, and it is believed the Spanish authorities had no doubt that her departure would be prevented if the co-operation of the United States officials could be secured.

The Spaniards are particularly elated over the success of their agents, as it was understood by them that the Bermuda would enable the Cubans to fit out a formidable force in the eastern part of the island just when, it is claimed, General Weyler's active campaign is beginning to make the situation extremely critical.

Manchester's Police Hearing.

CONCORD, N. H., Feb. 26.—At yesterday afternoon's session of the governor and council, in the hearing in the Manchester police commission case, Governor Busiel announced that it was the opinion of himself and his associates that "the law of 1893 does not impose upon police commissioners the duty of enforcing the laws, but we will hear evidence tending to show misconduct on the part of the police officers, which the commissioners have connived at, or, which having been brought to their attention, they have willfully or wrongfully refused to consider." After a sharp wrangle by the attorneys the examination of witnesses began. The hearing is unfinished.

Sultan Must Try Again.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 26.—Lord Salisbury has sent a reply to the communication which the sultan instructed Costaki Pasha to make to the British government inviting England to regulate the situation in Egypt with suzerain power on the basis of guarantees being given for the security of communications between England and India. Lord Salisbury, in his reply, says that the Turkish ambassador's suggestions are too vague. The sultan has, therefore, to formulate concrete proposals on the subject.

N. Y. Y. C. Will Lose Him.

LONDON, Feb. 26.—Before leaving for his Irish country seat yesterday, Lord Dunraven said he was surprised that his letters to Messrs. Phelps and Rives had not yet been published, owing to the fact that the resolution in such terms as that proposed by Captain Ledyard had been placed upon the records of the New York Yacht club. He will in any event resign, whatever the result of the motion may be. It is said his resignation has already been forwarded to the New York Yacht club.

Sadly In Need of Funds.

BOSTON, Feb. 26.—The New England Armenian relief committee have received the following cablegram from the treasurer of the Anglo-American relief committee in Constantinople: The British ambassador hears that there are great misery and sickness among refugees at Zeitoun, especially on account of the bitter cold. The sick by hundreds lie near corpses of dead women and girls, without a rag to cover them. Press upon all committees our need for funds.

Alabama Railroad Tied Up.

FLORENCE, Ala., Feb. 25.—The majority of the employes of the North Alabama railway went on strike yesterday for shorter hours. The strike is general all along the line to Jasper. If the strike lasts many days the Sheffield furnaces will be compelled to shut down.

JAMESON A HERO

London Gives Him a Warm Reception.

THE RAIDERS BROUGHT INTO COURT FOR EFFECT

Charged With Invading a Friendly State.

LONDON, Feb. 26.—It was probably not without design that the appearance of Dr. Jameson for arraignment in the Bow-street police court was delayed all through yesterday. There was a disposition to hilarity manifest in the locality from an early hour, and it was evident that there was set purpose pervading the London masses to give "Dr. Jim" an ovation.

The British authorities desire, as far as possible, to give no appearance of encouraging such a demonstration of approval to a citizen who had been handed over to them by a power against which he sought to wage war.

But the British government is well aware that, though Dr. Jameson is brought to England for trial as a criminal, he is in the popular eyes a hero, and his raid into the Transvaal, far from being viewed as a piratical enterprise, is looked upon as a chivalrous and knightly adventure to succor hard-pressed friends and fellow countrymen.

It was for this reason that the crowds about the Bow-street police court were kept waiting, and everything done to make a mystery of the movements of Dr. Jameson. It was hoped the ardor of his admirers would be cooled by the long wait, and that the noisy mob waiting to cheer him would grow weary and depart.

But all this strategy was without avail. The people insisted upon waiting. They grew impatient and somewhat irritable, to be sure, and many rumors circulated among them that they had been duped into coming to Bow street, while the distinguished prisoner had been quietly smuggled into another court and there arraigned and quietly bailed. It did not take long, however, to prove the falsity of these rumors, and the crowd renewed its vigil with reawakened zeal.

At 3:55 p. m. the faith of the crowd that they had not been waiting in vain was quickened by the arrival at Bow-street police court of a party of aristocratic friends of Dr. Jameson. Many of these were shown to prominent places in the courtroom, which was thus made to present an animated scene during the period of the still further wait.

As a matter of fact, it was quite late in the day before Dr. Jameson was landed at all. He was brought on a tug to Pritchon-the-Thames, and was then conducted by a further roundabout and obscure route to Bow-street police court. As a consequence, it was almost 6:30 o'clock in the evening when he was finally driven up to the entrance of the court and brought in. The authorities thus succeeded in evading any very noisy demonstration on the part of the waiting crowds outside, as they were scarcely aware that the prisoner was among them before he had disappeared into the courtroom.

Jameson's Popularity.

But his entrance to the courtroom was the signal for a remarkable scene. Evidently everyone in the courtroom was of one mind in sympathizing with him. All wore his friends and all rose, giving him hearty cheers. It was in vain that the court officers sought to quell the demonstration. The effort to do so seemed little more than cursory.

The charge lodged against Dr. Jameson and 14 of his fellow-prisoners was then declared to be "warring against a friendly state."

After the charge had been read, Henry Matthews, Q. C., who was home secretary in the former Salisbury government, announced that in view of the importance of the case that the law officers of the crown would conduct the prosecution. Formal evidence was then presented as to the circumstances of the arrest.

The lawyers who were in court on behalf of the accused men asked that their personal recognizances be accepted for bail.

Sir John Bridge, the chief magistrate of the Bow-street police court, said that, before deciding on the bail, he felt that he ought to observe that, in his opinion, a graver offense could not be charged against men than that charged against the prisoners. It was a crime of the highest possible gravity, the magistrate continued, and it must be so treated by everyone, when they consider that the commission of such an offense might create a war between countries previously friendly. The circumstances of the present case, he added, were most peculiar. He felt satisfied that the prisoners would appear when wanted. He, therefore, accepted their personal recognizances and fixed their bail at £2000 bonds each.

Sir John Bridge then addressed the prisoners personally in a grave and serious vein. He begged them for their own sakes and for the sake of the good faith of the country to refrain from appearing where public excitement would be aroused by their presence, or in any way lending themselves to the disturbance of the peace.

Notwithstanding the seriousness of Sir John's tones, and the tenor of his remarks deprecating any public demonstration over the prisoners, the withdrawal of the defendants from the courtroom was accompanied by a renewed outbreak of cheering. The court officers set about restoring quiet, and by vigorous remonstrances finally succeeded in quelling the disturbance.

When the courtroom had become quiet again, Sir John Bridge said: "That sort of thing might bring the name of England into contempt."

Meanwhile a still wilder scene was being enacted outside the courtroom. The prisoners had been smuggled into the courtroom so unexpectedly and with such dexterity that the waiting mob were cheated out of their opportunity for shouting. But they were ready this time. Dr. Jameson's appearance outside the building was the signal for a wild outbreak of cheering, throwing of hats in the air and a tremendous pressure to get up within reach of the popular idol.

The crowd's intentions were friendly, enthusiastically so, but they threatened bodily harm to the object of their admiration. Dr. Jameson was quickly hemmed in by a surging throng, who apparently sought to carry him, and he made his way through them with great difficulty. When he finally reached his cab he was hurriedly driven off without waiting to make any sign of acknowledgment of the popular ovation.

ZIMMERMAN HOME AGAIN.

While In Australia He Had Only Indifferent Luck.

A. A. Zimmerman, the champion professional bicycle racer, who arrived from Australia recently, attributes his failure to come back with an unbroken record to the Australian climate. The bicycle racers of that country, he says, do not compare with those of America or England in speed, but no matter how fast a foreign rider may be he cannot expect to win races until he has lived long enough in the country to become acclimated.

Parsons, Plether and Walker are the best riders in Australia, but they would stand little chance in this country against our fast men. Another thing that hindered Zimmerman in Australia was the poor tracks. They are generally four laps to the mile and are grassed. Zimmerman won 19 races in Australia and was beaten several times, twice at New Castle just before he left. He was well satisfied with the financial result of his trip, as the prizes for races are usually $1,000. Great interest is taken in bicycle racing, and race meets are attended by from 20,000 to 30,000 people.

Zimmerman was rather reticent about his plans in the United States. He said he had not yet decided whether he will race again. If he does race, it will probably be in Paris, where he has a standing offer of $500 a week for one race a week. This, he thinks, would be more profitable than following the circuit in the United States.

ON AN UNKNOWN LAND.

What Was Found on an Island In the Gulf of California.

S. C. Millard, who acted as guide and interpreter for Professor McGee and his party in their exploration of Tiburon island, in the gulf of California, has returned from the expedition with an overflowing supply of interesting things to relate.

He says the island is about 18 by 30 miles in size and rises 4,000 feet above the encircling waves of the gulf of California.

The land is barren and rocky and is inhabited by about 300 Ceres Indians, who are unlike any other known race in appearance and language. They wear very few clothes and scamper, barefoot, up and down the cliffs like wild goats. They never plant crops, but subsist on game, which is found in abundance on the island, and the waters furnish them with any quantity of fish, clams and oysters.

The popular belief that the natives are cannibals has not been strengthened by the visit of the explorers. There have been wild tales of mines of fabulous wealth upon the island, treasures buried by the incas, of ledges of silver and copper ores of wonderful width and thickness, but Mr. Millard is inclined to discredit these stories. In the half of the island which was visited he saw plenty of rugged mountain, plenty of fertile valleys, many springs of delicious water, but of mineral wealth he saw no trace.—Washington Star.

WHEN HE PUFFS

Joe Blackburn May See Silver Linings on the Clouds of Smoke.

L. C. McMurtry of Jessamine county, Ky., has sent to Hon. J. C. S. Blackburn a handsome Kentucky cob pipe that is of very ingenious design. The pipe is made of several pieces, nicely smoothed and finished and joined together in the shape of a letter S, standing for "silver." Around each joint is a silver coil, and the handle joint is tipped with gold leaf. Accompanying the gift was the following note:

To the Hon. Joe C. S. Blackburn:

This "free silver" cob pipe is respectfully presented; produced in a "free silver" county, on a "free silver" farm, cultivated by a "free silver"-farmer, shelled by a "free silver" sheller, made and presented with the best wishes of a "free silver" advocate. Earnestly hoping that it will be smoked during the next six years by a "free silver" senator from the "free silver" state of Kentucky, with great admiration and highest regard for you personally, I am yours most respectfully,

L. C. McMURTRY,
A "Free Silver" Painter.

The Awful Truth His Weapon.

Dr. English of San Francisco, who is now stopping in Philadelphia, is a practical joker of rare ability. The doctor possesses the most essential qualification of a joker—that is, a perfect command of his facial expression. A few days ago, while a rainstorm was at its height, a pompous man of large girth rudely pushed the physician aside as he rushed for a Tenth street car. Just as the fat man puffed his way to the platform Dr. English yelled and wildly beckoned him back to the pavement. With much astonishment and labor the passenger waddled to the curbstone and asked what was wanted. Placing his hands on the fat man's shoulders, the doctor asked him earnestly if he knew the day of the week.

"Why, it's Tuesday," was the reply.

"Are you sure?" entreated the doctor.

"Yes, sure."

"Great heavens," yelled English as he hopped on a passing car, "then yesterday must have been Monday!"—Philadelphia Record.

Great Theatrical Trust.

A theatrical trust is in process of formation to control a chain of 31 theaters stretching from New York to San Francisco. The parties to the combination are Al Hayman, Charles Frohman, Nixon and Zimmerman of Philadelphia and Rich and Harris of Boston. The promoters refuse to give details of the combine further than to say that all bookings will be made from a central headquarters to be established in New York.

New National Holiday Proposed.

In the senate another proposition for a national holiday has been presented by Mr. Hoar in the form of a memorial. It is to be June 24 and is to commemorate the first sighting of the north Atlantic coast by John and Sebastian Cabot in 1497. It was referred to the judiciary committee, to which has already been referred Mr. Hill's bill for a "Jackson day" March 15.

An Industrious Hen.

John Holloway of Smith township found an egg laid by a Plymouth Rock hen which measured 8½ inches lengthwise and 7 inches in circumference. When broken, one yolk and one white were found. Inside the large egg was found another of ordinary size, perfect in its formation and in all respects sound.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

For a Flying Machine Contest.

Boston is to have a flying machine contest. Some time next fall the Boston Aeronautical society will award prizes in a "field trial" of aeronautical apparatus, at least so says The Aeronautical Annual, which has just been issued.

Let It Last So.

The Leather trust is, figuratively speaking, on its uppers.—Washington Star.

Sixteen Freaks Her Pallbearers.

The funeral of Nettie Cole, the fat girl known as the Kentucky Beauty, took place in Chicago recently. The casket was 30 inches wide, 27 inches high and 5 feet 6 inches long, and as no hearse large enough for the casket could be found, a covered undertaker's wagon was used. About all the professional museum freaks in the city were present, 16 of them acting as pallbearers.

SEEKING A SAFE PLACE.

The Boarding House Pleased Him Except In One Respect.

The young man who had answered the advertisement surveyed the room critically.

"It is quite satisfactory," he said at last. The boarding house keeper gave a sigh of relief.

"When shall we expect you?" she asked.

"Not so fast, please," returned the young man. "There are some other details to be settled that are even more important than the plan and location of the room."

"I think you will be satisfied with the table, sir," suggested the landlady.

"I don't doubt it at all," he answered.

"And the price is"—

"Quite satisfactory," he interrupted. "But I am a little particular in regard to the people whom I shall be obliged to meet. In fact, it is solely because of that that I am leaving my present quarters."

"Only those whose characters are above reproach are"—

"Of course, of course," he interrupted again. "May I ask if you have any ladies among your boarders?"

"Certainly. Several of the gentlemen are married, and their wives are naturally with them."

"Oh, that's all right! But how about unmarried ladies?"

"There are two."

"And widows?"

"One."

He picked up his hat and started for the door.

"But, sir, they are!"—she began.

"Madam," he replied, "I have no doubt at all that they are very estimable ladies, and I should be very glad to make their acquaintance any time except during leap year. But I am taking no chances now."—Chicago Post.

DR. NANSEN'S SURPRISE PARTY.

Dr. Nansen's reported discovery of the north pole is to be classed with the things that are important if true, but there isn't much reason for believing it.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

It is possible, however, that he has been heard from, though it may be considered strange that he sent no direct message to a friend or to some Russian official to prevent all doubt and render speculation unnecessary.—New York Journal.

It is still time enough for England to claim the north pole. Nansen hasn't reported yet, and a regular Dunravenish-British geographer named Keltie proposes to question the honesty of his report if he claims it.—Philadelphia Press.

It would have been a great day for science if the eminent Dr. Nansen could have propelled himself to the north pole by means of the Keely motor and brought back evidence of his discovery in the shape of a Roentgen photograph of it.—New York Advertiser.

It would be wise for those who declare that Dr. Nansen could not have found the north pole to wait a short time till they hear what Dr. Nansen himself has to say about it.—Baltimore American.

NELSON COUNTY, KENTUCKY,

WHISKY

Gold Medals Received for Standard of Quality and Purity at New Orleans, 1885, World's Fair, Chicago, 1893.

Dear Sir:

Do you keep whisky in your house? We presume you do; else you are an exception to the rule.

If you are threatened with consumption there is no treatment equal to one or two drinks each day.

If you have a bad cold a warm toddy at bed time is the thing. In Scarlet Fever, Pneumonia, LaGrippe and Typhoid Fever it is necessary.

When you are tired, it will strengthen you. When downhearted, it will cheer you up. It is a friend in need and a friend indeed.

But you should not abuse a friend, therefore use whisky wisely. If you do not abuse it, it will ever be your faithful servant. If you abuse it, it will make you its slave.

No man becomes a drunkard sure after years of determined effort in that direction. Take our advice; use whisky wisely. Don't buy cheap whisky, but buy the best.

Do you ask which is the best? The question shows that you are not posted.

We'll tell the best whisky is that known as the "I. W. Harper." This is a fine Sour Mash, made down in Nelson County, Kentucky, and we are the authorized agents at this place.

We shall be pleased to have you sample it; its excellent quality speaks for itself.

Respectfully,
JNO NOLAN,

SOME CRISP GOSSIP.

Colonel Henry A. Thomas, private secretary to Governor Greenhalge, is a busy man these days. He is filling many engagements in behalf of the governor, who is ill at his home in Lowell. At a banquet the other evening he remarked that the situation reminded him of an epitaph he had read somewhere and which is as follows:

Here lies the body of Mary Ann.
Safe in the bosom of Abraham;
'Tis all very nice for Mary Ann,
But mighty hard for Abraham.

He then made the application that it was very nice for him to thus enjoy himself, but rather hard on the governor. Just the same, Colonel Thomas is a mighty interesting after dinner speaker.—Boston Post.

SHADOWING THE CARRIERS.

Honest Men Have Nothing to Fear From Detectives.

The letter carriers of Boston and vicinity are again up in arms on account of the presence of what they term the obnoxious government secret service man from the department at Washington.

Last week he was in Cambridge and yesterday he was reported at the South End. There are said to be at least three of them, and it is positively known that two were placed under arrest in Cambridge as suspicious characters one afternoon last week.

They at first refused to give their names, but when threatened by the police with a night's lodging in a cell they produced their badge and credentials. This was sufficient proof and both were discharged.

All over the country the carriers have begun to interest themselves in the matter and have already taken steps to have the detectives removed. The claim is based upon the fact that many honest men are followed about on their route, which is not only an injustice to them but an outrage.

The men are said to have been in this city but they might as well have stayed away as our local department does not need watching.

Their observations, however, prove them strictly honest for they complimented our carriers as being unexcelled in the country.

BASE BALL TALK.

What Clubs Are Preparing for the Season's Work.

The Emerald base ball team is preparing for the coming season, even at this early date, and already has given an order to Wright & Ditson of Boston for a set of the finest uniforms ever sent here.

The club will have about the same personnel as last year. Connors will pitch, and Con Donovan will probably go behind the bat until Dan Murphy returns from Mt. St. Mary's college, where, at present, he is in active training for the opening of the season, which occurs earlier in that part of the country.

Dan and the late Frank Sullivan were two of the finest ball players who ever attended the grand old college on the mountain. Mike Mitchell of the Emeralds has been giving his attention to pool during the winter and appears to be one the cleverest performers with the cue in town. "Dada" Garrigan, Peter's little brother, Pop Smith, Andy Roarke and the rest of the club are all in fine condition.

The semi-professional clubs such as the Emeralds, South Ends, Emmetts, Florence club, T. R. and T's and St. John's put up excellent games and a series between them would be a paying venture.

There may be a railroad league here this season, but even if such is the case the patrons of the game will not miss any such exhibitions as the Emeralds vs. South Ends, or St. John's vs. T. R. and T's have been known to put up.

Slines and McCarthy will in all probability be taken into the New England league, though they have not been signed yet.

THE TARIFF BILL

Laid on the Shelf by the Senate.

LIVELY DEBATE INDULGED IN BY THE REPUBLICANS.

Cong. Teller Aroused by Morrill's Remarks.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—A widely published story attracted attention at the Capitol to the effect that the Republican senators of all factions had agreed that there could and would be no tariff legislation this session, and had instructed Senator Morrill (Vt.) to make a statement to that effect on the floor of the senate at the earliest opportunity.

Senator Morrill, when asked yesterday whether the story were true, answered: "On the contrary, it is my purpose to ask the senate today to take up the tariff bill for consideration."

Senator Morrill was as good as his word, bringing the tariff question to a test vote at the earliest practicable moment on a motion to take up the tariff bill for consideration. The vote stood: Yeas, 22; nays, 33. At the close of the vote he announced that it was obvious that there was not a Republican majority in the senate, and that he did not feel authorized, under the circumstances, to waste further time on this bill; but he added that the Republicans on the finance committee were ready to consider any tariff measure their colleagues in the party might think wise to pass.

The vote in detail was as follows:

Yeas—Messrs. Aldrich, Allison, Baker, Burrows, Cameron, Clark, Cullom, Davis, Elkins, Gear, Hale, Hansbrough, Hawley, Lodge, Mitchell (Or.), Morrill, Nelson, Perkins, Proctor, Quay, Sherman, Shoup —22.

Nays—Allen, Bacon, Bate, Berry, Butler, Caffrey, Call, Cannon, Carter, Chilton, Cockrell, Dubois, George, Gordon, Gray, Harris, Hill, Jones (Nev.), Kyle, Lindsay, Mantle, Martin, Morgan, Palmer, Pasco, Peffer, Roach, Stewart, Teller, Turpie, Vest, Walthall, White—33.

Teller's Resentment.

Mr. Teller (Rep., Colo.) took offense at Morrill's remark that there was not a Republican majority, saying that it was the attempt of Mr. Morrill to read the silver Republicans out of the party. He notified that senator that he and his colleagues, who believed in the cause of silver, had been as zealous and worked as long in the Republican party as the senator from Vermont or his colleagues. The silver Republicans did not propose to be read out of the party. they would only go when they saw fit. They could, he assured the senate, get along as well without the party as the party could without them.

Mr. Sherman (Rep., O.) said that every day since the passage of the present law the country had been running in debt, and there was no occasion for it. Already there had been issued $268,000,000 of bonds by this administration. The great body of it was for deficiencies of revenue. Speaking of the tariff bill, Mr. Sherman said: "Let us take this bill up, and if it is not a perfect bill, let us make it so. Let us give the government revenue. Our duty is not yet performed. If the chairman of the committee will not move to take up the bill again, I will. I will make the motion at the proper time."

Mr. Harris asked Mr. Sherman why he did not advise the treasury to issue the $50,000,000 of seigniorage and the balance of the silver to meet the deficiencies.

Mr. Sherman, in reply, said that question had been tried and tested. The house of representatives pronounced their denunciation of that most foolish and dangerous fallacy by a vote of almost 3 to 1. This senate did not represent the people; it represented the states, and Sherman called attention to the fact that more than 10 votes cast in the senate came from states whose aggregate of population did not equal one-third that of the state of New York.

Silver Sentiment Dying Out.

Sherman warned Harris that the cause of free silver would never be so strong in the future as it had been in the past. The sober second thought of the people of this country, as expressed by their representatives in the popular branch of congress, was for sound money and against free coinage, and the sentiment in that direction was rapidly and surely growing.

Mr. Frye said that he had advised all his constituents who were business men that the house tariff bill was as dead as Julius Cæsar, and that he hoped no attempt would be made to resurrect it.

The senate was entertained later by an interesting bimetallic colloquy. Teller declared, in reply to Morrill's speech, that the house tariff bill was nothing but an electioneering scheme, got up to promote the presidential interests of a certain candidate. Sherman announced that he, like Morrill, was ready to vote for any tariff measure promising treasury relief, whether taxing tea, coffee, or both.

Allen (Neb.), after Stewart's tirade, asked Senator Aldrich whether he would vote for the tariff bill, with a free coinage attachment? Aldrich said "he would not." Allen declared that this reply showed the hypocrisy of the Republicans in passing bimetallic resolutions everywhere and yet refusing to vote for a bimetallic measure. A bimetallic colloquy of considerable warmth ensued.

Platt (Conn.) maintained that he was a true bimetallist, as was his party, but opposed to silver monometallism. Whereupon Teller, Mitchell (Or.) and Stewart joined the affray in charging bad faith in interpreting the meaning of the term bimetallism, and cited the Republican platform criticisms of the first Cleveland administration, because of its unfriendliness to silver.

Platt declared that when the silver men had reached a readiness to throw over protection by attaching free coinage to it, the death knell of the silver delusion and craze had struck.

Indian Appropriation Bill Passed.

The house passed the Indian appropriation bill, the sixth of the 13 general appropriation bills, and sent it to the senate. It was thought that a yea and nay vote would be had on the Linton sectarian school amendment which passed Monday, but the demand was not made.

The house also passed, without debate, the Dingley bill, authorizing the secretary of the treasury to take and kill the Alaskan seal herd if a modus vivendi could not be concluded before the opening of the present season for the protection of the seals pending negotiations for permanent protection to the herds with the countries interested.

The Van Horn-Tarsney contested election case from the Fifth Missouri district occupied the remainder of the afternoon. The majority report favors Van Horn, the contestant, who is a Republican, while the Democrats and one Republican favor recommitting the case with instructions to reopen the testimony, purge the returns of fraud and recount the honest ballots.

The Bayard Case.

Chairman Hitt, of the foreign affairs committee, yesterday reported to the house the preamble and resolutions agreed to by the foreign affairs committee, censuring Ambassador Bayard for portions of speeches he delivered at Edinburgh and Boston, Eng. The resolutions follow:

Resolved, That it is the sense of the house of representatives that Thomas F. Bayard, ambassador of the United States to Great Britain, in publicy using the language above quoted, has committed an offense against diplomatic propriety and an abuse of the privileges of his exalted position, which should make him the representative of the whole country, and not of any political party. Such utterances are wholly inconsistent with that prudent, delicate and scrupulous reserve which he himself, while secretary of state, enjoined upon all diplomatic agents of the United States. In one speech he offends a great body of his countrymen who believe in the policy of protection. In the other he offends all his countrymen who believe that Americans are capable of self-government; therefore, as the immediate representatives of the American people, and in their name, we condemn and censure said utterances of Thomas F. Bayard.

Resolved, further, That in the opinion of the house of representatives, public speeches by our diplomatic or consular officers abroad, which display partisanship or which condemn any political party or party policy or organization of citizens in the United States, are in dereliction of the duty of such officers, impair their usefulness as public servants and diminish the confidence which they should always command at home and abroad.

Christ's Second Coming.

BOSTON, Feb. 26.—The midwinter prophetic convention of the Second Adventists opened here yesterday. The following officers were elected: President, G. H. Wallace, Springfield; vice presidents, W. J. Hobbs, Boston; F. Burr, Somerville; secretary, F. L. Piper, Boston. President Wallace, in his annual address, said: The people have been called out to herald the second coming of Christ to this world. We are not looking for the end of the world by total annihilation. We are looking for the redemption, and for that Christ is coming back to this earth. We are looking for the end of the age. The world is not going out of existence; it will last forever, but in a restored state. All indications seem to point to the fulfillment of the great promises by God in the Bible. There has been no time when these prophetic signs have become so apparent as the present.

Art Museum For Worcester.

WORCESTER, Mass., Feb. 26.—At a meeting of members of the Worcester Art society and other prominent citizens last night, the announcement was made of the formation of a corporation to be called the Worcester Art museum. Stephen Salisbury has presented to the city a tract of land, comprising 1 3-5 acres, whereon is to be erected a public art museum. He gives for this purpose the sum of $100,000, of which $50,000 is for the building and $50,000 for a fund, to be held in trust by the art museum for the benefit of the city of Worcester.

Couldn't Stand Ice Pressure.

DAVENPORT, Ia., Feb. 26.—The movement of ice in the Mississippi yesterday carried out 180 feet of the draw span of the government bridge, which was supported by trestlework while undergoing repairs. The bridge was a heavy double decker, used by the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railway. The wires on the bridge were carried away, and telegraph and telephone communication are interrupted. Another result is that the Davenport street railway system is shut down.

GANLIN BROUGHT BACK

By the Nashua Police From Effingham, Ill., to Answer Charges of Forgery.

NASHUA, N. H., Feb. 26.—The police officers sent after Gustave Ganlin, who is wanted for uttering a forged check and getting it cashed, arrived here from Effingham, Ills., last night, with Ganlin. The prisoner's father is a wealthy Providence man. When Ganlin went away a girl from Lowell, Mass., accompanied him, but she left him in Chicago.

WANTS POLICE COMMISSION.

Lawrence Aldermen Vote to Present Bill For Such a Commission to the Legislature.

The Lawrence board of aldermen at its meeting Monday evening voted to submit the police bill, as drawn up by the city solicitor, to the legislature, with the change that the date when the measure shall take effect shall be July 1 of this year, instead of next.

This will necessitate a special election if the bill passes the legislature, as the measure provides that to become a law it shall be approved by the people. Aldermen Robinson and Howarth have voted against presenting the bill to the legislature, being opposed to changing the tenure of office of the force.

Emmet-Sonetaro Combination.

The Emmett-Sonetaro combination of high class entertainers gave a delightful entertainment in Odd Fellows' hall, last evening, a large audience being present.

Emmett is a ventriloquist of the highest order, a humorist, a musician and an all-round actor. He can keep an audience in roars of laughter for hours together. Sonetaro is quite as good in his line as Emmett is in his domain. Both together can make a cyclone of fun.

The Governor's Illness.

The Boston Herald says Gov. Greenhalge has abandoned the plan of making a trip to Jamaica. He will go to Kittrell, N. C., instead, his physician having advised against taking a sea voyage. It is said he may be able to start for the south next week. His illness is now regarded as quite serious. His ailment is said to be nervous prostration.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE

ADJOURNS TO ATTEND EX-GOV. ROBINSON'S FUNERAL.

Question as to Appointing Women Notaries Public.

BOSTON, Feb. 26.—The senate adopted an order that, when it adjourns, it be to meet on Thursday afternoon.

An order was adopted that when the house adjourns it be to meet on Thursday, Feb. 27, 1896, at 2 o'clock, on account of the funeral of the late ex-Governor Robinson. Previous to the adoption of the order, Speaker Meyer, who took the floor for that purpose, advocated its passage as a fitting recognition of the character and public services of the deceased.

In the senate a committee of seven members were appointed to attend, with the president, the funeral of the late ex-Governor George D. Robinson at Chicopee.

The speaker appointed 12 members as a committee on the part of the house to attend the funeral of the late ex-Governor Robinson. The speaker, in accordance with the terms of the order adopted by the house, is also a member of the committee, but will not be able to attend the funeral.

When the bill providing for retaliation when the insurance brokers of this commonwealth are discriminated against by other states came up in the senate for enactment, Mr. Malone moved that it be tabled. He had consulted the law department, and there was some doubt as to its constitutionality. The bill was tabled.

On motion of Mr. Roe an amendment was adopted to the resolve to provide for completing and furnishing the gymnasium of the Worcester normal school, increasing the appropriation from $10,000 to $12,000, and the resolve passed to be engrossed.

Mr. Slade offered an order in the house requesting the opinion of the supreme judicial court as to whether the legislature can legally authorize the governor and council to appoint women notaries public. The order, at the request of Mr. Meilen, was laid over.

EVA BOOTH'S MISSION.

Will Endeavor to Induce Ballington Booth to Withdraw Charges.

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—Commissioner Eva Booth, who is now in command of the American division of the Salvation Army, yesterday made a full statement of her intended action. She said that the trouble between Ballington Booth and international headquarters grew out of a letter which Ballington Booth wrote on Jan. 31, in reply to his recall from the American command. In this letter he made two definite charges—one against the incompetency of his father as an individual, and the other against the methods of the army. Commissioner Booth's presence was in the hope of inducing Commander Booth to withdraw those charges. When he insisted, she tried to induce him to submit the matter to arbitration, which he also refused.

Until the new commanders, Commissioner and Mrs. Booth-Tucker, arrive, Commissioner Eva Booth will devote all her efforts to keeping matters quiet. The property is a second consideration, but she expects no trouble in getting it. The general's reply to his son's charges is expected on Saturday's steamer, and there will be then a further hearing.

W. Bramwell Booth, chief of staff, cabled a manifesto to the army in the United States last night. It is a general appeal to the loyalty of the officers, soldiers and recruits. "Your late beloved and honored commanders have refused to obey the general's orders," he says, "and have resigned, and an attempt is now being made by some people to repeat the scandal and the disgrace of the Moore infamy."

The manifesto says Eva Booth has been named as acting commander, "pending the appointment of a new territorial leader." These words, in some quarters, are taken as an indication that Booth-Tucker has not yet been selected officially to succeed Ballington Booth.

Got Nothing For Their Pains.

WARREN, Ark., Feb. 26.—A daring but unsuccessful attempt was made to rob the Merchants' and Planters' bank of this place yesterday. About 3:30 o'clock three men entered the bank, and two of them went behind the enclosure, where Cashier Adair was in conversation with T. M. Goodwin and D. W. Sutton. Their first salutation was: "Hold up your hands." Mr. Adair sprang for his pistol, when the men commenced shooting, and Goodwin received what is thought to be a mortal wound and Adair was shot through the shoulder. He returned the fire and wounded one of the men. The robbers did not accomplish their object. As they rode out of town they kept up a fusilade of shots.

The Nicaraguan Revolution.

MANAGUA, Feb. 26.—United States Minister Baker has cabled to Washington requesting that the United States gun vessel Alert, which is understood to be near this coast, be dispatched to Corinto in order to protect the property of the United States citizens. President Zelaya has a number of troops 40 miles west of this city, but he is without information as to the exact doings of the revolutionists. The forces of the Conservative party have all rallied to the support of the president during the present crisis.

Disturbances In China.

A WAR RELIC

Of Service of a Lowell Man. Many More Like it.

A distinguished badge in Lowell is the G. A. R. button.

Reminds us all of past service.

But the unseen badges speak louder.

The war left but few men physically right.

The tented field is not a home life.

Lame backs and weak kidneys are relics of soldier days.

The men of 50 who have lame backs, in most cases had army experience.

These are the badges the boys don't want.

But having them they are learning the cure,

Frank Zesewetz lives at 160 Dummer street.

He had two years of light artillery riding.

And suffered much from weak back.

It followed him through life.

Painful backache in urinary trouble—sleepless nights.

Tried many medicines with little benefit.

He adds: "I got Doan's Kidney Pills at Ellingwood & Co's, Merrimack and Central streets, and had taken but a few when I felt much better, and today I am free from the backache, and the unnatural urinating has ceased. I am not in any way inconvenienced now and I give Doan's Kidney Pills the credit. You may use my name and say that without hesitation I recommend them to all who have any kidney disease."

Doan's Kidney Pills are for sale by all dealers—price 50 cents. Mailed by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S. Remember the name, Doan's, and take no other.
